Share list will be opened on 10th September, and will close on 10th October.
Minimum number of shares on which Company will be declared formed, 50,000.
As soon as the minimum number, 50,000, are applied for, a meeting of the applicants will be convened, to consider and adopt Articles of Association.
Within one month after the Company is incorporated, a General Meeting of Shareholders will be convened to elect directors.
For the ordinary working of the Company, it is proposed to call up 2s a share, viz., 1s immediately after incorporation on receiving notice of allotment, and 1s before the close of the first year, of which second call not less than three months' notice will be given.
A preferent dividend of 8 per cent. paid to shareholders before estimating the mutual profits.
Immediately after the election of directors, the Company will commence business.
There are now in the city 30 Companies doing Fire Insurance business, of these 26 are Agencies of Companies established in other parts of the world, the remaining 4 are local, 2 only of which limit their operations to Fire business.
The profits resulting from the operations of Fire Insurance Companies in New South Wales amount to about £130,000 a year, of this the agents of British and Foreign Companies net nearly £100,000, which is yearly sent out of the colony. We, therefore, think it desirable to establish another Fire Insurance Company with Colonial Capital, and thus endeavour to retain a fairer proportion of those large profits within the colony.
The operations of the two local Insurance Companies doing Fire business only have resulted as follows:—
SYDNEY FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.
Amount paid up on shares by shareholders, £1.
Annual dividend 6s per share, equal to 30 per cent. per annum.
In addition to this the shares have increased over 250 per cent. in value since the Company was established in 1855, being an average of 12 per cent. per annum, this added to the paid dividend of 30 per cent., makes the original investment productive of 42 per cent. per annum.
AUSTRALIAN MUTUAL FIRE SOCIETY.
Amount paid up on shares 1s 3d
Average dividend and bonus paid to shareholders 25 per cent. per annum.
In addition to this, the shares have increased in value, from 1s 3d to 6s, or 380 per cent, in the 5 years since the Company was formed; or 75 per cent. per annum, which added to the actual dividend paid, shows the original investment in shares of this Company productive of over 100 per cent. per annum.
These are the only purely Colonial Fire Insurance Companies doing business in New South Wales. Of the others, 26 are British or foreign Agents, and with such an immense preponderance of these, they must every year take a much larger proportion of the profits of fire insurance out of the colony than is desirable for its well being or creditable to our enterprise.
In Victoria, the Australian Alliance Assurance Company, established 15 years, has had a success, almost, if not quite equal to either of the above.
In England, where insurance companies have their business extended over a large area, thus including the average of every risk, we find results even more encouraging than those quoted for the Australian colonies—for instance we find the Liverpool and London and Globe, paying dividends of 30 per cent. per annum.

The Northern	30 per cent
North British and Merantile	34 " "
London Assurance	36 " "
Caledonian	32½ " "
Royal	40 " "
Scottish National	45 " "
Yorkshire	60 " "
Norwich Union	75 " "
Union	82½ " "

And whilst paying those splendid dividends the shares have increased in value in form of those quoted upwards of 1100 per cent., and striking an average for the whole of them upwards of 930 per cent.
The great increase in the value of shares in Australian and English insurance companies is not an artificial or puffed up valuation, but is the result of sound principles upon which the operations of those companies have been conducted; for instead of paying away the whole of their profits in dividends they have, each year, carried large sums to the credit of reserve account, thus building up the stability of the Company and increasing the value of the shares.
For instance, THE NORTH BRITISH AND MERCANTILE, for last year's operations, had, as net profit, £187,800, or 75 per cent of the capital, yet paid a dividend of only 34 per cent.
THE LIVERPOOL AND LONDON AND GLOBE had, as net profit for 1876, in its fire department, exclusive of the interest on its invested capital, the sum of £240,579, or over 97 per cent. on its paid-up capital, yet paid a dividend of only 30 per cent., the balance, as in The North British and Mercantile, going to swell the reserve account, and proportionately increase the value of shares.
In England, the average premiums charged on all risks, including Stock and Merchandise, is about 3s per cent.; here it is over 9s per cent., and the risk no greater, as proved by the average fires for the last twenty years, and where, with premiums charged so much less than are current here, insurance companies in England are paying dividends of from 20 to over 80 per cent. per annum, in addition to carrying large portions of their profits to the reserve account, there cannot be a doubt that there is a profitable field for the operations of another fire insurance company in this thriving community, rapidly growing in wealth and population, where the premiums charged are ample and the risks are as small as in any part of the world.
Now, a LOCAL COMPANY, with a large number of shareholders, all interested in its success, and striving to put business in its way, with an active and intelligent board of directors, must have an immense advantage when competing with the agent of any foreign company for business.
We therefore desire to establish THE CITY MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, and, whilst making a most profitable investment for its members, be, at the same time, the means of keeping within the country some portion of the £100,000 a year, which is now being taken away by the British and Foreign companies.
Share lists opened on MONDAY, 10th September.
By order of the Provisional Committee.

For full prospectus, see the SYDNEY MORNING HERALD of Saturday.
The public is invited to subscribe for 34,000 shares in the above mine; 5s per share on application, 2s 6d per share on allotment, and 2s 6d (if required) not earlier than six months after the formation of the Company.
All deposits will be returned in full if the Company is not formed.
The property consists of 100 acres of mineral lease, on which the lodes of ore have been discovered, and 100 acres of mineral conditional purchase for site of the smelting works, &c.
The lodes are of unusual richness and solidity. It is estimated that they will average 20 per cent. for copper. A shaft has been sunk on the eastern lode 10 fathoms, and a level driven north on its course at that depth about 3 fathoms. The ores are carbonates and black oxide, and vary in width 2 to 3 feet. The shaft cuts at 10 fathoms a second lode of sulphides, and has been sunk upon this, called the western lode, 3 fathoms. A level has been driven south on the course of this lode about 3 fathoms, discovering a splendid mass of rich ore from 3 to 4 feet wide.
The profit of reducing these ores to crude regulus for sale, at Newcastle, has been carefully worked out from actual experience by competent authorities, and is estimated at over 25 PER CENT. PER ANNUM on the capital.
Prospectuses may be obtained, and plans of the ground, and specimens of the ores seen at the offices of the agents of the proprietors, as under.
The share list will be closed on the 21st September next.

PEAK DOWNS NEW COPPER COMPANY
At a meeting of the shareholders of the Peak Downs Copper Company, held at the Chamber of Commerce on the 21st August, it was resolved to form a new Company for purchase of the Peak Downs Mine, now offered for sale by public tender on the 12th September next.
1. Capital, £25,000, in shares of £1.
2. Company to be registered in Queensland, under the Limited Liability Act.
3. Provisional Directors to be appointed to decide on the amount to be tendered for purchase.
4. Shareholders in the old Company desirous of carrying on the mine may secure shares in the new Company by depositing with Trustees, to be hereafter appointed at a public meeting, scrip for the same number of shares as those applied for in the new Company; or, if they prefer it, 10s per share when called upon to do so. This deposit of scrip or cash is necessary to guarantee the tenderers on behalf of the new Company.
5. Any person subscribing, but not now a shareholder, to pay a deposit of 10s per share to the said trustees when called upon to do so.
6. All subscribers, whether now shareholders or not, to pay, in addition to such deposit of scrip or cash, the sum of 3d. per share for payment of the expenses of forming the new Company.

The FURNITURE is replete with every convenience for the proper accommodation of forty guests, with three suites of private rooms for families. The E. The HOTEL is held on a ground lease, having seven years to run, at £100 per annum rental.
The SITUATION of the property is choice and central, having a south-east aspect, and lying within a couple of minutes' walk of the Post and Telegraph Offices, the heart of the town, and opposite to the Bank of New South Wales.
The increasing extent and importance of Rockhampton is assurance to the future proprietor that investment in such a property as this will be a sure fortune.
The main approaches to the hotel have been beautified at some expense by the planting of shade trees, which are enclosed in substantial hardwood fences.
The commanding and appropriate position of the property ensures at all times the security to visitors of a healthy retreat. Metal streets with good drainage surround the property, and all the appointments within receive the cordial appreciation of all visitors.
The proprietor is desirous of selling the hotel, furniture, stock, &c., IN ONE LOT, and in consequence of the pressing necessity that exists for his leaving the colony is willing to accept the low price the undersigned is prepared to name for the lot.
Principals alone will be treated with, to whom will be furnished any further particulars desired on application to

WANZER SEWING-MACHINES
"The sewing-machine of the present day is not the sewing-machine of some years back. The Wanzer Sewing-machine Company were amongst the first to produce what may be literally termed a practical sewing-machine, and have been the most successful in attaining these results. These unequalled machines are now to be found in every part of the world."—NAVAL AND MILITARY GAZETTE, London.

"We are very pleased to find that the National Education Committee have decided upon introducing sewing-machines into every National School in Ireland. We understand that the committee have selected the 'Wanzer' Lockstitch Machine as being the most simple and effective. This is a great compliment to the Wanzer Sewing-machine Company."—MECHANICS MAGAZINE, London.

"During the Fine Arts Exhibition at York, the Prince of Wales attentively watched a blind girl working a sewing-machine with the utmost ease and dexterity, and ascertaining that the machine was one of the Wanzer manufacture, the Prince subsequently commanded that two of their celebrated family sewing-machines should be sent to Marlborough House, and one to Sandringham Hall, in Norfolk." COURT CIRCULAR, London.

Used in the households of the British Royal Family, the Sultan of Turkey, the ex-Empress of France, the Emperor of Russia, and other Royal Families.

CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH:
CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.
The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which in OUTWARD APPEARANCE so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor, therefore, feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.
Purchasers are therefore requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—
1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist, Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to EACH PACKET.
2. Each SINGLE POWDER has directions for the dose, and the words John Steedman, chemist, Walworth, Surrey, painted thereon.
3. The name Steedman is always spelt with two EE's.
4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.

The well-known London trader La Hogue, having been chartered for the conveyance of emigrants to Sydney, took her departure on the 23rd August, having on board 437 persons, exclusive of the crew. La Hogue should be in fine trim for the prosecution of a fast passage.

The Florence Irving (s.) left Cooktown at 5 p.m. 25th August, arrived at Salisbury at 6.30 a.m., and left at 7.30 a.m., 26th August; arrived at Cairns at 1 p.m., and left at 6 p.m., 28th; anchored in Cleveland Bay at 11.45 a.m. 27th, and left the same day at 8.45 p.m.; arrived at Bowen at 7.45 a.m. 28th, and left at 9.44 a.m.; arrived in Brisbane at 5.45 a.m. 31st August; left at 0.30 p.m. 1st September, arrived in Sydney at 2.30 p.m. 3rd September. Experienced light S. and S.E. winds and fine weather to Wide Bay bar, thence to Brisbane strong southerly breeze with thick rainy weather and high head sea, thence to Cape Byron strong northerly breeze and thick weather with lightning and heavy rain, thence to Sydney strong S. and S.W. winds with clear weather.

By cablegram we learn that the steamer City of Santiago, from Melbourne, had arrived in England.

The Diamantina (s.) crossed the Manning bar at 11.45 a.m. on the 2nd instant, and entered Sydney Heads at 11.45 a.m. on the 3rd instant. Experienced fresh S.W. wind with fine weather during the passage. Cargo: 1130 bags maize, 98 bags oysters, 10 coops fowls, 40 cases eggs, 4 kegs 5 boxes 2 jars butter, 90 hides, 2 bags bacon, 1 bale tobacco, 160 pigs, and sundries.

The ship Amana arrived yesterday from London, after an excellent passage of 86 days from the Downs. She experienced very poor N.E. trades; crossed the Equator on 10th July, in longitude 31·20 W., and had only moderate S.E. trades, which were carried to lat. 26 S. and longitude 36·42 W., attended with heavy rain. She ran her easting down on a mean parallel of 43 S., and coming south of Tasmania passed the S.W. Cape on 28th August. The ship brings a very large cargo, and is to the consignment of Messrs. Cowlishaw, Brothers. On the 17th June exchanged signals with the clipper ship Miltiades.

The Hero (s.) left Auckland and cleared the harbour at 4 p.m. on Tuesday last, 28th August, and experienced strong westerly winds and heavy head sea during the whole passage across; she rounded the North Cape at 2 p.m. on the 29th, entered the Sydney Heads at ten minutes to 11 p.m., 3rd instant, and arrived at the Grafton Wharf at 11.45 p.m.

FOUNDERING OF THE SCHOONER VINE.—A telegram was received yesterday morning by Captain Hixson, dated from the Seal Rocks, reporting that the schooner Vine, from Sydney, bound to the Macleay River, foundered off Seal Rocks at 5 a.m. yesterday. All hands were saved, and are now at the lighthouse. The schooner was owned by Mr. Langley, of Balmain.

Captain A. Randal, of the Lord Ashley (s.), was summoned by Mr. Leslie, superintendent of the Mercantile Marine, at the District Court, Melbourne, on Thursday, for unlawfully carrying on his vessel a seaman named Joseph Watson Southman without entering into an agreement with him in the form and manner required by the Merchant Shipping Act. The Lord Ashley sailed for Newcastle on Wednesday, and the defendant was consequently not present in court. Southman, who is a negro, stated that the defendant engaged him as cook for his vessel at a salary of £6 10s. per month, that he took him to Portland and Sydney and back to Melbourne, a voyage of twenty-seven days, and that on arriving here again, he discharged him without paying him any wages. The witness also averred that he and several others of the crew had never been put on the articles. The charge was proved to the satisfaction of the presiding magistrate, Mr. Call, P.M., who fined the defendant £5, with two guineas costs, and ordered that half the penalty should be given to Southman.—Argus.

The You Yangs (s.) cleared Port Phillip Heads at 7.45 p.m. on the 31st ultimo, rounded Wilson's Promontory at 6.45 a.m. on the 1st instant, Gabo Island at 3 a.m. on the 2nd, Cape St. George at 8 p.m. on the 2nd, and entered Sydney Heads at 6.15 a.m. on the 3rd. Experienced light south-west winds to the Promontory, with heavy showers of rain, thence to Gabo Island moderate westerly winds; thence to Cape St. George fresh south-east winds; the remainder of the passage fresh westerly winds, with fine weather.

She left Eden at 9 a.m. on the 1st instant, arrived in Merimbula at 4 p.m. same day, left again at 4 p.m. on the 2nd, calling at Tathra at 6 p.m., left at 7 p.m., arrived at Wollongong at 3 p.m. on the 3rd, left at 4 p.m., and arrived at the company's wharf at 10 p.m. same date. Had fine weather throughout, with light S. and W. winds.

The ship Susanna, Godeffroy, 1600 tons, which sailed from Samoa for Hamburgh, via Vavau, on the 11th July, put back three days afterwards, leaking badly. A court of inquiry was being held when the Energy left, and it was expected she would be condemned. She had 800 tons of copra on board. This vessel arrived from Hamburgh about fourteen months ago, after experiencing a terrific gale off the northern point of New Zealand. About 200 sheets of her copper were torn off, and the vessel was very much strained. She has been under repair ever since, but it seems she has not been rendered seaworthy.—Auckland Evening News, August 25.

INTERESTING POINT IN MARINE INSURANCE.—Some questions having been raised as to the liability of underwriters when meat is thrown overboard under circumstances similar to those which occurred on the voyage of the City of Brussels, it may be interesting (observes a San Francisco journal) to know the practice which generally rules in such cases. Assuming that the owners of the meat had a policy insured free of particular average, that portion of the beef consumed by the ship's crew and the passengers would become a claim upon the shipowner, and the portion which it was deemed necessary to throw overboard as a measure of safety to health would not form a claim against the underwriters, inasmuch as it has been decided, in the case of Taylor v. Dunbar, that where meat shipped at Hamburg became putrid through delay on the voyage, caused by tempestuous weather, and was necessarily thrown into the sea, there was no loss within the meaning of the policy.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1877.

MR. GARRETT says that, with the enlarged maximum area for free selections, there would be no necessity for giving the right of pre-lease. He admits that the holding of a pre-lease is a very insecure tenure; that land so held may be trespassed upon by another selector, or may be cut up and sold by auction. It may be presumed from this (though it is not specifically stated), that one of the proposed amendments of the law is to abolish pre-leases. At any rate, it would be hardly consistent to uphold the system after condemning it in so unsparing a manner. The opinions which the champions of free selection have expressed at different times about these preleases have varied considerably. In the early days they were looked upon as an essential part, if not the best part, of the whole scheme. Afterwards, when their value had been tested by practice, they were treated as of little importance. Further on it was said that the principle had been found in force under the old law, and was therefore incorporated in the new law for equity's sake only. Now Mr. GARRETT says in effect, if not in so many words, that they are "a mockery, a delusion, and a snare." This final judgment agrees with the view we have always taken of the matter. But it is one thing to say that so loose and deceptive a system should never have been set up, and that it shall be discontinued in the future; and it is another thing to cure the difficulties that have already arisen under it. The area held under pre-lease is enormous, and it is held by squatters as well as free selectors. It might be a legitimate and safe thing to provide on easy terms for the conversion of this insecure tenure into a secure one in the case of bona fide resident selectors who have never transferred their holdings; but to extend the concession beyond that point would obviously be a source of danger.

This reference to the question of transfer brings us to another of the proposed amendments. Mr. GARRETT would have the law altered so as to prevent the transfer of a conditional purchase until the conditions are fulfilled—that is, instead of allowing the selector to sell at the end of the first year, to postpone that privilege to the end of the third. It is easy to see that this change would involve hardship in many cases. A man might be subjected to considerable loss by being thus tied to his selection; for, if he could not transfer it when his interests elsewhere called him away, he would have to sacrifice those interests or lose his selection by forfeiture. But Mr. GARRETT is right, nevertheless, in proposing this new restriction. It is only one of the legitimate consequences or belongings of the system. Free selection was invented and established for the purpose of creating a particular class of settlers and of placing the land in their hands. Facility of transfer before the conditions are fulfilled makes it easy for the land to pass into the hands of a different class of proprietors. As, therefore, facility of transfer interferes with the working-out of the system to its intended results, one of two courses must be taken—to surround transfer with tighter restrictions, or to let go the system. The tighter restrictions may be disagreeable to the free selector; but their only object is to secure more effectually to the State those advantages—such as the occupation of the land by small resident proprietors—in consideration of which the State sells the land to the free selector on specially easy terms. The free selector gets his land without competition and on long credit; and if the power of transfer before the end of the three years helps to pass the land on easy terms into the hands of the employers of dummies, the right course is to take the power away. The State is only doing right in taking precautions to secure the full accomplishment of its own purposes.

In our ignorance of the question we have always thought and held that conditional purchase could not deserve the name unless care is taken to ensure the fulfilment of the conditions. But we have repeatedly—and too often for the peace of mind of some who knew better—pointed out that conditions which were intended to place artificial restraints upon the power of capital and the propensities of human nature, were liable to be evaded. A dozen years or more had passed after the introduction of the conditional system, and with the author of the law at the head of the Government, and his fidus Achates in the Lands Office, the Legislature felt itself compelled to step in for the purpose of preventing or punishing these evasions. The inspection of free selections had been tentatively introduced by Mr. FARNELL, on the authority of the Executive. Mr. GARRETT considered it necessary to make it a part of the law; and it is satisfactory to see that he has courage enough to defend the action which has been taken in this matter at the present moment. Mr. GARRETT is now convinced of "the moral and legal rottenness of the system of declarations." We have always held that, as embodied in the land law, it was corrupting the conscience of the community. The Act of 1875 struck at the root of it; but the force of the blow was due to the action of the Upper House rather than to Mr. GARRETT, for the bill itself, when it left the Assembly, still in part upheld the system. It is well, however, that the blow was struck, and that as we have a law imposing conditions which are likely to be evaded, we have given up the provisions which aggravated the offence of fraud by superadding the crime of perjury. And after all that has been said in praise of the Act of 1861, and in censure of those who, in their ignorance, have suggested that there were mistakes in it, there is some satisfaction in finding one of the very few men who know anything about the matter admitting that in this respect at least the law was faulty. Referring to the forgery of declarations, Mr. GARRETT says: "A law that gave rise to this was an unsound law, morally, constitutionally, and legally, and ought not to be tolerated longer than necessary." We have not used stronger language than this ourselves; the principal difference between us and Mr. GARRETT being that we found it out fifteen years ago. Mr. GARRETT, in fact, traces the fraud and perjury, and forgery under the land law to the law itself, rather than to the offenders. The Herald has not only been accused of knowing nothing about the land law, but also of having pointed out the various ways in which its intended requirements might be evaded, and so, of having stimulated people to do wrong. As these two accusations neutralised and refuted each other, we have been able to bear them. Our vindication comes at last from Mr. GARRETT, who, knowing all about the law, and what it means even when its words admit of "various readings," now throws the responsibility upon the law, and therefore upon those who introduced the law and passed it, in defiance of those who pointed out its injurious tendencies.

IN the short speech which was all that the ill manners of the small mob of electors gathered at the hustings permitted Sir JOHN ROBERTSON to deliver, when returning his thanks for his re-election for West Sydney, he spoke of his opposition to immigration and protection in a way that seemed to imply that the two lines of policy rested on the same basis. He said that his sympathies had always been against immigration at the public expense, and against protection, though on both points he had had to give way a little, for fear of something worse. Between these two lines of policy, there is no other resemblance than the superficial one, that in each case the Government should let the matter alone. For the action or inaction of the Government in either case is to be defended on entirely different grounds. The duty of Government in respect of peopling the country is quite a different thing from the duty of the Government in respect of determining the industry of the country; and to lump the two things together, as though they both followed from the same fundamental principle, is to confound things that differ.

The right and the duty of the Government to take the initiative in respect to the peopling of the country rests in the first instance on its being the trustee of an enormous unalienated estate. This is a duty which does not devolve on the Government of an old and settled country, but which does devolve on the Government of a young colony like New South Wales, where a mere handful of people are set to the task of laying the foundations of a nation, and where millions of acres are placed at their disposal, which are to be settled by a thriving population. A colonial Government, placed in such a position, has not only to perform the ordinary work of administration, but it has to preside over the great work of colonization. It cannot possibly do this if it entirely disregards the process of peopling the colony, and if it leaves that work to take care of itself. Placed as we are thousands of miles away from the over-crowded hives of population in Europe, it is impossible that the surplus population of the old world should reach us unassisted. We have had the proof of many years' experience, that without help those who would most like to come, and who would most benefit by coming, cannot come. A floating bridge must be built by which they can come over, and that bridge can be built out of the proceeds of the land fund. By spending a part of the land revenue in the importation of the right sort of people we not only increase the productive population, but we add to the value of the unsold estate; and the land fund expended in importing occupiers is in this way perpetually recouping its outlay, and placed in a position to repeat the process. Those who maintain that although placed in charge of millions of acres, our Government has nothing whatever to do with peopling them, leave out of sight altogether one of the most responsible duties resting upon it. It is equivalent to an assumption that the whole of the national estate has been placed at our disposal exclusively for our own benefit—that we have no duties to perform to the mother-country which entrusted us with the weighty task—that the estate is simply an endowment for the few people who happen to be here, or any who like of their own accord to come and join us—in a word, that a colony has nothing to do with colonisation.

Amongst those who have joined in the outcry against new comers are some who admit in general terms that as trustee of our immense national estate, the Government is entitled to do something towards the settlement of the soil. But they draw the line between country immigrants and town immigrants. They are willing that farmers and farm labourers should be imported, and set to work at once to grow food, or some exportable product; because persons so employed will help to cheapen food for the townspeople, and also find employment for them. Their complaint is that Government does not confine itself to importing rural immigrants, but that people are brought who do not settle the country and who are not of the class likely to do so—mechanics and others who cluster in the towns, and who, instead of increasing the work there, compete for what there is. With respect to this argument it may be admitted that there is need for discrimination in selecting immigrants of the classes most in demand, and it may not always be easy to fill up every ship in exactly due proportions. But new comers can never be dove-tailed into their right positions like pieces of mosaic. The whole history of British colonisation shows that some amount of adaptation to new scenes is required on the part of successful colonists, and hundreds and thousands of instances might be pointed to where colonists have achieved great success in a line that was entirely new to them. Many of our best country settlers have been townsmen.

The essence, however of the objection to bringing out artisans rests on the doctrine that Government must not interfere with the rate of wages, and this, as we have often pointed out, ignores the fact that the Government, as the largest employer, is always interfering with the rate of wages. The same argument too might be used by every agricultural labourer against the importation of other agricultural labourers, at least until he had become a free selector, or a freeholder on his own account, and was in a position to hire labour, when his views on the subject might undergo a change.

All this argument as to the rights and duties of a Government in respect of the importation of people has nothing to do with its functions in respect of determining the industry of a colony. In the main, that industry must be determined by natural causes, over which the Government has no control. An agricultural country will be agricultural, a pastoral country will be pastoral, a mineral country will be mineral, in spite of anything a Government can do to help or to hinder. The protectionist argument mostly revolves round the subject of manufactures, the question being whether a country not naturally adapted for this form of industry should be artificially stimulated to it, or whether its progress should be forced and made more rapid than would naturally be the case. The argument against protection is that Government thereby interferes with the natural, which is, therefore, the most profitable employment of capital and labour; that, by enhancing the cost of commodities, it taxes the many for the benefit of the few, and that it creates vested interests that cannot be easily got rid of, and that are always a political danger; that it makes an economical question unnecessarily a political one, and unduly mixes up private and personal interests with political questions, and that by so doing it tends to corrupt the political administration of the country and sap the self-reliance of the people. It this way it diminishes the wealth of the community, it weakens the springs of its action, and it undermines its morality.

But the argument that Government should leave industry alone is quite a different argument from that in favour of leaving immigration alone, and the two have no necessary connection with one another. What proves or disproves one does not disprove the other. They are altogether separate questions, and there is no necessary consistency in holding the two opinions Sir JOHN ROBERTSON grouped together, or inconsistency in separating them.

MORE IMMIGRANTS FROM ENGLAND.—Sir John Robertson has received a telegram from the Agent-General for the colony in London, to the effect that the ship La Hogue, with 437 emigrants, bound for Sydney, left London on the 23rd August.

AN HONEST MAN.—"Mnemon" in the Sydney Mail says:—"An honest man's the noblest work of God," said one of the candidates on the hustings in the course of his very egotistic remarks. I have often heard Pope's happy aphorism quoted, but was never so forcibly struck with it before. I began to cogitate as to how, had Pope lived under our democratic form of government, he would have described an honest politician. The liberalism of our politicians would, I am afraid, have been altogether "aboon his ken," and he would have been able to have found refuge only in the equally trite sentiment of Cervantes, that "every one is as God made him, and oftentimes a great deal worse."

The number of billiard and bagatelle licenses which expire on 30th June, 1878, issued up to the 31st August, 1877, were 447.

SNAKES.—A correspondent writes:—"Persons visiting the bush at the present time would do well to look where they tread. On Sunday morning, while in the reserve close to the Waverley Road, giving my pointer dogs a run, one of them, a young valuable dog, had a very narrow escape from being bitten by a brown snake fully four feet long."

COMMUNICATION BY TELEGRAPHY.—We have had many very curious illustrations of the trite old saying that truth is stranger than fiction. But the most curious, if not the last, is the marvellous application of telegraphy to the concerns of human life. The transmission of messages by the pantelegraph, which reproduces at the receiving station a fac-simile of the writing of the original message, may be said to be as old as, at all events, some of the hills. This was sufficiently wonderful; but marvels it seems, are never to cease, and now we hear of another by which the fac-similes of drawings can be transmitted by electricity. This is certainly one of those discoveries which "come directly home to the bosoms and business of men," and of women too for that matter. For should a wife elope from her husband, or a husband desert his wife, the lineaments of the missing person can be transmitted in a short time to the remotest telegraph stations. The invention will be just as useful in overtaking persons required by the police. All that is said to be necessary is that a photograph of the missing one should be sent to the nearest telegraph station, where the lineaments will be sketched by an artist on prepared paper, and this sketch will be reproduced at any station the sender wishes. But electricians seem likely to achieve even greater results from their inventiveness, and they already appear to be on the right track to discover a perfect system for transmitting sounds, and have already "rapped" out the air of Yankee Doodle.—"Mnemon" in the Sydney Mail.

LAUNCH OF A NEW YACHT.—On Saturday afternoon a new yacht was launched from Langford's well-known yard, at Miller's Point, in the presence of the owner, Mr. W. J. Trickett, and a number of his friends. As the little craft glided off the ways, she was christened by Mrs. Trickett the "Mabel," after the owner's eldest little girl. The yacht is about eight tons, and is built with curved leaden keel, and other modern improvements, and does great credit to her builder, Mr. Langford.

HYDE PARK.—We are informed by a correspondent that the condition of the grass in Hyde Park, referred to in a paragraph published in the Herald a few days ago, is caused not by persons walking over it, but by children being sent on to the park to amuse themselves, and wantonly pulling up handfuls and hatfuls of the grass by the roots.

PROTECTION TO NATIVE INDUSTRY.—In the letter, with this heading, published in the Herald of Saturday a mistake occurred. The words "Goods are shipped into our ports and sold very often for 15s. or 20s. less than cost price," should have been, "Goods are shipped into our ports and sold very often for 15 per cent. or 20 per cent. less than cost price."

INFIRMARY ITEMS.—The following cases have been treated at the Sydney Infirmary:—Eliza Saddler and James Downes, for scalp wounds; Catherine Johnson, for injury to the elbow; Edward White, for a wound to the shoulder-blade, evidently inflicted by some sharp instrument.

DEATH THROUGH INJURIES RECEIVED BY BURNING.—The Carcoar Chronicle reports that an inquest was held during the week before the coroner on the body of one William Dodd, who died in the hospital on Saturday morning last. From the evidence it appeared that the deceased had been in the employ of Mr. Joseph Ousby, of Cowra, and lived in a hut about five miles from Cowra at a place called Mulyan; Mr. James Ousby went to the hut on Tuesday, the 21st ultimo, and found the deceased in bed; he asked him if he were ill, and deceased replied that he had burnt himself a little; he then turned down the bed-clothes, and saw that the deceased's legs had been burnt in a most frightful manner; deceased did not appear to know how he received the burns, and did not seem to be in pain; had him sent to the Carcoar Hospital; when he went into the hut he noticed the ashes all spread about the fireplace. Dr. Smith deposed as to the nature of the burns on the deceased's legs; deceased was not able to walk, and mortification had set in the left leg; deceased said he had been under the care of Dr. Flockton, who said he was to have two glasses of brandy and water a day; deceased was drunk when he arrived at the hospital. The jury considered that the deceased, William Dodd, came to his death from the effect of burns while under the influence of liquor.

USING THREATENING LANGUAGE TOWARDS A PUBLIC OFFICER.—At the Armidale Police Court lately (reported in the Express), Mr. James Bray, land agent, summoned Mr. W. J. Fletcher to answer an information laid against him by the complainant for that he (the defendant), on the 21st August, did use towards the complainant threatening and insulting language—to wit, "I'll teach you who you are, and what you are, in less than a week;" also, "I'll teach you to send telegrams about the country;" in the Lands Office, and during office hours, whereby a breach of the peace might have been occasioned. Mr. Proctor for complainant, Mr. Fergusson for defendant. Mr. Fergusson said his client would admit using the words in the information, and he (Mr. Fergusson) would bring under the notice of the Bench the circumstances under which they were used. On Monday last, Mr. Fletcher wished to purchase a large area of land, but through some irregularity or misapprehension of the Act Mr. Bray would not accept the application. The following morning, upon again going to the office, defendant was informed that the land he had wished to purchase had been sold to other parties. The defendant then made inquiries of Mr. Bray whether certain blocks of the land in question had been sold? He refused to give him the required information, and that gave rise to the language complained of. Mr. Proctor called upon the Bench to put a stop to such gross insults upon public officers when in the discharge of their duty. Mr. Bray was the land agent, and he could have no object in discharging his duty in an improper way. The defendant had charged him with malpractices. (Mr. Fergusson: No.) "He'll teach him what he is," said the defendant; and Government officers were not to be insulted in that way. "He'd teach him to send telegrams," making Mr. Bray guilty of sending a telegram in a mean, dastardly way. The circumstances of the case were that on Monday last Fletcher and another speculator, named Reynolds, came to the land office to take up certain blocks of land, and it was contrary to the fact, as stated by Mr. Fergusson, that Mr. Bray refused the necessary information, for here were the forms in Court filled up by Mr. Bray. Mr. Fergusson said what they complained of took place on the following Tuesday morning. Mr. Proctor: Well, on the following morning Fletcher, finding that he could not obtain the land, it having been sold to some other party, and that he could not succeed in his contemplated object, vented his abuse and spleen on Mr. Bray. The information which had been given on the previous day was refused on the Tuesday unless Fletcher lodged his application and his money to show his bona fides. It was a fortunate thing that Mr. Bray was enabled to control his temper, or he (Mr. Proctor) should have been sorry to have been in Fletcher's boots, as the position would have been awkward. He hoped the Bench would protect public officers in the discharge of their duty. Mr. Fergusson, in reply, hoped the Bench would take the aggravating circumstances into consideration. The Bench having retired for a few minutes for consultation, were unanimously of opinion that Government officers ought to be protected in the discharge of their duty. The sentence of the Bench was that defendant pay a fine of £5, and 5s. 10d. costs (to be included in the fine); in default of immediate payment, one month in gaol. The fine was paid.

HOW TO SWELL THE CRIMINAL LIST ON PAPER.—Apropos of the practice of making a dozen charges out of one offence, now of frequent occurrence in our Police Courts, the following may be given from the Wagga Express of Saturday:—"There is a good deal of latent ingenuity in the world, but that displayed by a Victorian gaoler compares very favourably with anything of the kind unearthed lately. It appears that his establishment was but lightly patronised, and he feared in consequence that it would be closed and his occupation gone. So he hit upon a clever expedient for keeping up his average. He had within his walls a perfect jewel of a prisoner—a pleasant fellow, who had not confined himself to one particular branch of criminal art, but was a sort of Jack-of-all-trades in his way. It may have been that he had been (1) drunk, (2) disorderly, (3) had used bad language, and (4) had assaulted the police. In the multitude of the offences the gaoler found comfort. When he found that he owed the State one prisoner he took his pen and wrote four. It struck a visiting justice as rather strange that there should be a number of men in the gaol with precisely the same name, and the gaoler artlessly confessed the ruse. It would be satisfactory to hear the conclusion of this; whether he gave his pet prisoner a "ration" for every offence jotted down against him, or if not how he succeeded in eluding the vigilance of the authorities with reference to the small consumption of hominy."

DISABILITIES IN CONNECTION WITH COLONIAL MARRIAGES.—In the South Australian Legislative Assembly, on the 23rd August, Mr Blyth asked the Government what steps they had taken to secure the co-operation of the Governments of the neighbouring colonies in jointly urging the Imperial Government to the consideration of the amendment of the law to remove certain disabilities in connection with colonial marriages in certain cases, or to bring the subject under the notice of the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The Commissioner of Public Works (the Hon. J. Colton), replied that the Chief Secretary brought the subject under the notice of the delegates for the respective Governments of the neighbouring colonies represented at the Intercolonial Conference which met at Sydney in January and February last; but inasmuch as it appeared that the marriage laws of the several colonies were not in accordance with each other, certain marriages being lawful in some colonies and unlawful in others, and as steps were being taken to bring such laws into uniformity, any joint action of the Government was in the meantime considered impracticable.

A RACE WITH A RAILWAY TRAIN.—On the day of the Crystal Brook Show (says the S. A. Register) a somewhat novel race came off, the competitors being Muscle and Steam. Two young gentlemen mounted—it is needless to add upon horses that were pretty fleet of foot—were pursuing the road to the Brook, and when about six miles from their destination a turn of the road brought them neck and neck with one of the excursion trains taking passengers to the Show. The equestrians immediately made a race of it, and succeeded in reaching the Brook some minutes before the iron-horse. They had, of course, to follow the bends and turns of a bush track, and one of them actually got off once to get his hat, which had blown off—which, of course, made their exploit the more remarkable.

RESCUE FROM DROWNING BY A BOY.—The Lake Wakatip Mail of a recent date gives the following account of the heroic rescue from drowning by a boy:—We have been informed of a noble act of a lad of this town, which not only exhibited great courage, but also remarkable fertility of resources in one so young. It seems that a lad named Peter Stanhouse, whilst sliding on Silver Lake, last Sunday, fell through the ice. A big youth much his senior, stood by, and saw him struggling in the water, but either from fear or indifference made no effort to save. Another lad named Jacob Simmers, skating at the other end of the lake, no sooner saw the accident, than he rushed to the spot, snatched off a woollen scarf from his neck, and threw an end to the drowning boy, who had, we hear, already sunk twice; when Simmers threw his comforter, he lay flat on the ice, his younger brother at the same time with perhaps equal pluck, holding him by the feet. After two or three unsuccessful efforts, on account of the ice breaking, Stanhouse was rescued from his dangerous position.

TRUE SALMON.—Doubts having been expressed in some quarters as to the genineness of the salmon sent recently to the Mayor of Melbourne by the Mayor of Hobart Town (says the Argus), the heads of the fish were submitted to Professor M'Coy for his opinion. This he has given in writing as follows:—"I have examined the two fishes' heads you sent me just now, and as the hind edge of the operculum is nearly semicircular, the whole free edge of the suboperculum being directed obliquely upwards and backwards, and the union of that piece with the operculum being also very oblique (these two lines being nearly parallel), and further, as the junction of the narrow interoperculum is much above the junction of the operculum and suboperculum, I have no doubt the fish were true salmon—salmo salar."

RECIPROCAL INTERCHANGE OF PRODUCTS BETWEEN COLONIES.—It is evidently not the easy task that Mr. Casey would have us believe (observes the Argus) to give practical effect to the alluring theory of intercolonial free trade. At the last moment, an unexpected difficulty has prevented the ratification of the convention intended to permit the free interchange between South Australia and Queensland of certain articles actually the produce of or manufactured from the produce of the territories of the respective contracting colonies. After the draft convention had received the approval of the Queensland Ministry, the South Australian Government desired to make an important addition, the effect of which would be to extend the proposed treaty so as to admit South Australian products borderwise as well as coastwise. Considerable quantities of merchandise, such as butter, biscuits, dried fruits, jams, soap, and wine, all of which would be exempt under the proposed addition to the treaty, are now sent by means of the Murray and Darling Rivers to Wilcannia and Fort Bourke, from whence they find their way into the south-western districts of Queensland, paying duty at the Border stations. The Commissioner of Customs for Queensland considers that goods imported in this manner are not in the same position as transhipments via Victoria and New South Wales ports, as they cannot be so easily identified, and may be readily tampered with in transitu. The South Australian Government, on the other hand, contend that they never contemplated an intercolonial free-trade agreement of so partial a character as that proposed by Queensland. In their opinion the markets—both inland and coastwise—of both colonies should be thrown open to the articles included in the schedule of exemptions. Another obstacle to the conclusion of a satisfactory agreement lies in the demand of South Australia that the schedule should only include "raw sugar," i.e., not refined sugar. In the original draft convention the term used was "sugar." The Commissioner of Customs for the northern colony points out that if the term "raw sugar" were used Queensland would be deprived of the principal advantage she would gain under the treaty, viz., that of a free market for her sugar; and sooner than agree to it, he recommends his Government to abandon the negotiations. Seeing, then, that such radical differences of opinion exist upon two important issues, there seems little prospect of the conclusion of a treaty of Customs reciprocity between the two colonies. The Queensland Government have intimated that unless their views are assented to negotiations must be suspended until a better understanding has been arrived at, while Sir Henry Ayers holds the opinion that it would scarcely be worth while to conclude a treaty at all if the freedom of South Australian trade is to be limited to certain ports in Queensland.

LOSS OF HORSES ON SHIPBOARD.—The S. A. Register states that forty-two horses were shipped on board the Victorian in Melbourne, and had the weather proved fine they would doubtless have come through safely. It is very doubtful whether silt is a proper thing as a ground-floor for horses during a voyage, especially in heavy weather, and in the present instance it proved most disastrous. The steamer had a gale to steam against, and notwithstanding the fact that the engines were slowed down, the lower hold soon became a condition of bog, in which the poor horses laboured in vain to keep their legs, and one by one they fell in the slough, at the same time suffering terribly. Three died and were pitched overboard before the arrival of the steamer. On landing the remainder at the wharf eight more died almost immediately, while two others were so badly knocked about as to be unable to walk away, and they found a resting place in an adjacent yard.

PURCHASE OF SHEEP FOR NEW ZEALAND.—Our correspondent at Bathurst telegraphs that a sheep breeder from New Zealand, a Mr. Morrin, has purchased one ram and ten lambs, coarse-woolled, from Mr. E. Webb, for one hundred guineas.

SUDDEN DEATH OF THE HON. J. R. SCOTT, M.L.C., OF TASMANIA.—The Launceston Examiner reports the sudden death of the Hon. J. R. Scott, member of the Legislative Council for the South Esk. The event took place at deceased's late residence Carnsdale, New Town, near Hobart Town, on Saturday afternoon, 25th ultimo. On that morning Mr. Scott was in Hobart Town. In the afternoon he retired to his private room, and was not again seen till half-past six, when he was discovered lying on the floor apparently lifeless. Dr. Bright was sent for immediately, but he pronounced life extinct, and that Mr. Scott had probably been dead some hours. He was a native of Scotland, and arrived here in 1855, when not 18 years of age; and lived with his uncle Mr. James Scott, who taught him the profession of a surveyor, and he was for some time in the Survey Department at Hobart Town. He married a daughter of Mr. Michael Evans, manager of the Hobart Town and Launceston Marine, and of the Tasmanian Fire and Life, Insurance Companies, by whom he has left three sons and four daughters. He had been a member of Parliament for nearly eleven years, having at the general election, October, 1866, been chosen without opposition member in the House of Assembly for Selby, which district had, prior to that, been represented by the late Mr. Isaac Sherwin. After the dissolution, 7th August, 1871, he was re-elected for the same constituency on the 8th September. On the assembling of the new Parliament in November Mr. Scott was elected Chairman of Committees, Mr. (now Sir) J. M. Wilson being at the time Colonial Secretary and Premier. On the dissolution of the Wilson-cum-Chapman Ministry deceased became a member of the Innes Ministry in November, 1872, as Colonial Secretary, when he was elected without opposition to succeed Mr. Innes in the representation of South Esk, and Mr. Innes succeeded him as member for Selby. Mr. Scott remained in office till the Ministry was superseded by the Kennerley Ministry on the 4th August, 1873, since which date deceased had not taken any active part in politics. He was a Justice of the Peace for upwards of twelve years, his name having been inserted in the Commission of the Peace, March 20, 1865, in the time of Governor Gore Browne. Deceased had been a prominent member of the Royal Society of Tasmania, and he had contributed some interesting papers to that Society. He felt much interest in the development of the minerals of the colony, a considerable portion of the latter part of his life having been spent in exploring the wild bush lands, especially on the west part of the colony. In these explorations he has often penetrated further into the bush than any other white man had previously done, frequently undergoing toil and privation that would have daunted most men.

A PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—A singular accident happened (writes the Landsborough correspondent of the Pleasant Creek News) to a lad called John Schmidt, the son of the landlord of the Flour Mill Hotel, Ararat. The lad and a fellow apprentice named Wright were engaged in hanging a stable door. Schmidt was holding the door on one side, while Wright was boring a hole through it from the other side. When the boring operation had been completed, Wright withdrew the auger; but to make sure of a clean hole, he thrust it in again, and pushed it forcibly through, just as Schmidt had put his eye to the hole to look through. The screw of the tool struck the ball of the eye with such violence that it penetrated it nearly to its full depth. The lad was promptly taken away to Ararat for medical attendance, but it is certain that he has entirely lost the sight of the eye injured.

A FEW REMARKS ON THE NEW STRAIGHT Needle, Wheeler and Wilson Machines. Of the great multitude of different Sewing-machines which have been produced and put upon the market, but few have achieved or deserved success. Miserable traps have been dignified with the name of sewing-machines, of but little more value than the metal of which they are made, and, failing in all the good qualities of standard machines, have been offered at low prices, and urged upon purchasers on the score of cheapness. Wheeler and Wilson's Sewing-machines, at the reduced prices, are by far the most economical and truly cheap, by reason of their superiority in all desirable qualities, and moreover are made and warranted by a responsible company of long standing and established reputation. No family need be without a Wheeler and Wilson's Sewing-machine, as the terms are so arranged that with a little effort a machine can be easily paid for. GORDON and GOTCH, Sole Agents, Sydney.

Death of a once Celebrated Bushranger in Tasmania.—The celebrated bushranger, Martin Cash, died at his residence, Glenorchy, on Sunday, the 26th ultimo. We learn that Cash went to the Lord Rodney Hotel, New Wharf, on the evening of the 10th instant, and informed the landlord, Mr. Samuel Weir, that in consequence of severe illness, he had applied for admission into the General Hospital, but had been refused. Mr. Weir allowed him to remain at the hotel until the following Monday, when he returned to his home at Glenorchy. It will be remembered that Cash in the year 1870 published in book form an account of his adventures, from which we glean the following particulars:—He was born in the year 1810, in the town of Enniscorthy, Wexford, Ireland. Cash's career, as a young man, was according to his own account a series of events calculated to develop into the more serious phases of crime, and he was subsequently convicted of shooting a love rival named Jessop, for which offence he was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. After a brief incarceration in the Cork gaol, Cash was sent with 170 other convicts by the ship Marquis of Huntly to Botany Bay, New South Wales. They arrived at Sydney on February 10th, 1828, subsequent to the assignment or hiring-out system had come into operation. Cash was "assigned" to Mr. G. Bowman, of Richmond. He subsequently made his escape, and in 1837 he came to Hobart Town. He was not long out of the hands of the authorities of the law, and for the next few years he led a prison life which was ultimately broken by his escape from Port Arthur in company with Jones and Kavanagh in December, 1842. After remaining at large nearly twelve months, during which period he was at the head of a band of bushrangers, and was the terror of the whole colony, Cash was again captured, but not till after the most strenuous exertions were made to again lay hands on him, and a reward of 200 guineas (with a free pardon and a free passage from the colony, if required) was offered to any person who would give information that would lead to his capture. In September, 1843, he was tried and convicted of murder and sentenced to death. He was, however, afterwards reprieved and sent to Norfolk Island, where he remained till that establishment was broken up when he had the satisfaction of bidding adieu to what he terms that "island of despair," and returning to Tasmania, where he was appointed by the late Hon. W. E. Nairn to take charge of the Government Gardens. On resigning that situation he went to New Zealand for four years, after which he returned to Tasmania, "and," he adds, "having saved a little money I purchased a farm at Glenorchy where I resolved to pass the remainder of my days in the calm and tranquil enjoyment of rural retirement." Cash continued to devote himself to farming pursuits up till the time of his death.

A New Religious Society.—"A very curious society (the Saturday Review observes) has chosen the present as a favourable moment for revealing its existence. It is called 'The Militia of Jesus Christ,' and it is said to number a million of volunteers, principally in France and Belgium. Probably this is a great exaggeration; but the society is so eminently in harmony with the ecclesiastical spirit of the times that it is easy to believe that its ranks will be tolerably full, more especially as women are allowed to be members. This society is stated by its founders to be modelled on the institution of St. Dominic, which 'conferred great benefits on society' by the ardent and effectual way in which it combated heresy and schism. Its great object is to be the restoration of the temporal power of the Pope, and until the time comes for effecting this object the associates are to pray, to contribute at least a franc a month to the Pope's funds, to support the Catholic press, and to wear a white cross openly if possible, and, if not, under their clothes. It is, in fact, to be a sort of Ultramontane International. That it will have a considerable success may be safely predicted, just as it may be safely predicted that the remarkable progress of Socialism in Germany will not be without its counterpart in other countries. Socialism and Ultramontanism are the constant enemies of modern society, and they are both beginning to lift up their heads after the defeat they sustained in the German war and the suppression of the Commune. No one can say what will happen in the next few years; but, so far as materials for calculation exist, there is no reason to suppose that modern society cannot hold its own against both its enemies. We may await the struggle without misgiving, but there is every indication that a struggle is coming which will shake the Continent although England may happily stand outside its influence. How soon it will come depends, perhaps, more on the fate of the present French Ministry than on anything else."

Hospital Sunday Movement.—The earliest inception of the Hospital Sunday movement (says an English journal) was thus alluded to the other Sunday afternoon, by the Rev. H. Wace, Professor of Ecclesiastical History in King's College: "The idea of a special appeal once a year for all hospitals was in substance some centuries old. In 1197 a priory and hospital were founded near Bethnal green, commonly called St. Mary's Spital. In the churchyard of the priory, now Spital square, was in old times a pulpit cross, something like that which was once in St. Paul's Churchyard, and here for many generations were annually preached what were known as Spital or Hospital sermons. The pulpit was broken down in the great rebellion, but the sermons were continued with the old name of Spital Sermons at St. Bride's, Fleet-street, and retained the old associations. In the last century Bishop Butler preached one of the sermons, and the institutions for which he preached are specified as St. Bartholomew's and St. Thomas's Hospitals for the wounded, maimed, sick, and diseased; Bridewell for the vagrant, indigent, and miserable; Bethlem for the distracted men and women; and Christ's Hospital for the children. The word hospital was used in the width of its old signification, but to all intents and purposes this was 'hospital day.' It seems a pity," added the Professor, "that the new institution of Hospital Sunday has not been affiliated on this old custom."

Sacred Concert.—On Friday evening last a sacred concert was given by the choir of St. David's, Surry Hills, under the leadership of Mr. Kitson, in the Oddfellows' Hall, Brisbane-street, in aid of the seating of the new church of St. Simon and St. Jude, at the corner of East and Campbell streets, now in course of erection. Mr. J. N. Ollis presided, in the absence of the Rev. J. D. Langley, the incumbent of the parish. The attendance was not numerous, but those who were present seemed highly pleased at the way in which the various pieces were rendered. Mr. H. Dodds, the treasurer of the new church, proposed, and Mr. T. Griffiths, of the building committee, seconded, a vote of thanks to the choir, which was testified by acclamation, after which the meeting separated.

Gavotta.—Mr. Fred. Lyster is the composer of a pretty piece of music which is being played as a dance at the Victoria Theatre in the "School for Scandal." The piece is named Gavotta, and is by special permission dedicated to the Hon. Lady Robinson. The music is easy and the air taking, although exceedingly simple. It is set in common time, in two flats, changing into five flats, and back to the original key. On the front page is a portrait of Miss Minnie Walton as she appears in the character of Lady Teazle. The music is well printed, and is published by Messrs. Elvy and Co.

Italian Opera.—It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that it is proposed to have another season of opera in Sydney, in which "Lohengrin" and "Aida" are to be the great attractions.

Victoria Theatre.—Last night the entertainments at this theatre were under the patronage of his Excellency the Governor who, with the Hon. Lady Robinson, was present. All parts of the house were tolerably well filled. The performance of the "School for Scandal" has already been fully noticed, and it only remains to add that the comedy was better acted and went more smoothly than on its production last Saturday night.

School of Arts. — Captain Hayward's Variety troupe attracted a large audience at the School of Arts last evening. The entertainments commenced with a song by Madame Laroche, followed by another by Miss Willie Walton. Then came an Irish song and dance by Messrs. Folloy and O'Neal, a solo on the harmonium by Madame Laroche. Mr. Laroche's imitations of English concert hall singers; a song by Miss Walton, Messrs. Brown and Newland's Ethiopian scenes, and Messrs. Folloy and O'Neal's pedestal dance. The singing is not particularly good, but the negro business and the dancing are clever, and Mr. Laroche gives a capital idea of the London music hall style of performance. Altogether it is a very fine variety entertainment, and one at which half-an-hour might be amusingly spent by those whose taste is in that direction.

The man who vends or imports, as many do, an imitation or counterfeit of a popular medicinal cordial drunk by thousands, knowing what he vends or imports to be a pernicious article, deserves summary punishment. Beware of so-called tonics and diuretics recommended as better than or the same as Udolpho Wolfe's Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps, and purchase none but the genuine preparation.—Adv.

By order of the Consignees.—41 cases Price and Co.'s perfumery, soaps, pomades, oils, essences, extracts, cosmetiques, patent medicines, fancy boxes, ginger brandy, sponges, sarsaparilla, also patent fire exterminators. We desire to call especial attention to Messrs. Chas. Moore and Co.'s unreserved sale of the above named goods at their Rooms, 167, Pitt-street, this day, commencing at 11 o'clock.—Adv.

SYDNEY RAGGED SCHOOLS.

The annual meeting of the Sydney Ragged Schools was held at the Temperance Hall, yesterday evening; his Honor Mr. Justice Hargrave occupied the chair. Among the gentlemen present were Rev. R. G. Paterson, Messrs. R. G. Reading, G. A. Lloyd, M.L.A.; W. Neill, J. R. Fairfax; J. S. Harrison, M. Charlton, Rev. J. Barnier, Hon. John Davies, M.L.A.; Mr. J. Kent, Mr. G. W. Barber, Rev. W. Ridley, and others. The proceedings were opened with prayer.

The Chairman expressed his great pleasure in presiding over the meeting, and in advocating the objects of the Ragged Schools and stating the general principles that entitled such institutions to special support; but, before he did so, he would refer to a paragraph in the report, which was as follows:—"Since closing the foregoing we have to report the death of the Hon. John Fairfax, who for many years acted as Treasurer to this institution, and liberally supported these schools, not only with his purse, but also his powerful advocacy was used in their advancement." He was sure every one of them who had seen Mr. Fairfax there year after year would feel his loss. He had been very much struck with the courtesy, kindness, and good sense with which Mr. Fairfax had always conducted their meetings, and the interest he had always shown in the institution; but it was for them now to go on with the work in which Mr. Fairfax had so much interested himself. He remembered that, two years ago, in that very place, after the meeting was over, Mr. Fairfax very kindly thanked him for attending. He replied, "I have not half so much to do as you have, and yet I always see you here, and at other meetings as well." Mr. Fairfax told him that he was always very glad to come, and he thought every gentleman in Sydney ought to select at least one charity, and do all he could for it. Those were the last words that passed between himself and Mr. Fairfax. He had now to show them why these institutions were especially entitled to their support; but before he did so a letter was just put into his hands from the executors of the late Mr. Fairfax, stating that he had left the institution a legacy of £100. (Applause.) That was the way in which Mr. Fairfax had carried out, even in his grave, the kindness of his heart. With regard to the institution itself, its first distinctive feature was this, both in England and Scotland, and out here, those who teach in these schools, and those who manage them, adopt this principle—they take the children out of the streets—those whom the world rejects. Their admission entirely rests upon the circumstance that they are the outcasts of society, either neglected by their parents, or perhaps having no parents at all. That was a very beautiful feature in these ragged schools; these poor children were taken under the personal care of the ladies and gentlemen who conduct these schools, and who endeavour to supply the place of parents towards them. That was a perfectly distinguishing feature of these institutions. The second feature peculiar to these Ragged Schools was the universal kindness shown towards these children. There was no compulsion; nothing but kindness between the teacher and the child. That was the only way in which we could do any good, even in our prisons. His experience was that kindness towards these people and personal attention, such as that shown by the late Mrs. Fry, did far more good than anything in the way of punishment towards reforming the criminal and preventing crime. With regard to these children, there was the most perfect, continual, and unremitting kindness on the part of the persons who took care of the children. What the result had been would be explained to them in the report. Three or four years ago he went to give away the prizes at the Ragged School. There was a tea meeting beforehand, and he never saw more perfect affection than was evinced towards the children by their teachers. They seemed to him to be almost the happiest children he had ever seen in his life. That principle of kindness was the second feature which, to his mind, entitled that institution to their utmost support. The third distinctive feature of the Ragged Schools was the Christian instruction given to the children. There were a great many discussions going on of late about the extent to which the secular and religious instruction should be mingled together. It was admitted on all hands that the State must educate the children, but the question was how far the religious element should be mingled with it. Those schools looked upon only one side of the question, and the children there read the Holy Scriptures, without any dogma or any theory—simply the Word of God. That was the third feature he liked in that institution. He had no doubt it had worked an immense effect for good among the children of this city. The system of children begging seemed now to have almost passed away, although some ten or twelve years ago nothing was more common, and he imputed the absence of it very much to the Ragged Schools, which have picked up these children. The children soon told one another of where they were kindly treated, and got one another to go to the Ragged School. There were several gentlemen to speak, who would enter into details, and he would only make one more remark. The principles upon which the Ragged Schools were conducted were those of the Moravians. Count Zinzendorf, the founder of that order, was stimulated in his work by a picture he saw of the Crucifixion, with the motto, "This I did for thee: what hast thou done for me?" Let them keep that idea before them. The leading idea of that institution was to bring the children to the knowledge of the Saviour who died for them. Let them follow the directions of Jesus Christ, who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me." God has done this for us; let us do all we can for the children.

The Secretary then read the following report:—

"The committee of the Kent-street, Harrington-street, and Glebe Ragged Schools have now the pleasure to submit their seventeenth annual report, and desire to express their devout thanks to Almighty God for that measure of success which has attended their efforts.

"These schools are intended for children who cannot be admitted into our Public schools, although the Public Schools Act provides for the free admission of those whose parents are unable to pay; the want of suitable clothing would be a barrier to their being received and educated with those who possess superior advantages.

"These schools have now been before the public for upwards of seventeen years, and are entirely supported by voluntary contributions, and were these schools not available hundreds of children would have been without education of any useful character. The committee therefore confidently appeal to the public for the necessary funds to carry on the work.

"It will be seen from the balance-sheet that the subscriptions received during the year amounted to £511, while the expenditure was £710; consequently the committee would have found great difficulty in carrying on the schools efficiently, had they not received a legacy of £100 and a special donation of same amount, both of which have been absorbed in the current expenditure.

"The balance-sheet, duly audited to 31st March last, shows a balance in bank of £41 12s. 7d., with outstanding liabilities on that date amounting to £25 5s. 4d.

"The committee thankfully acknowledge a special donation of £100 10s. 11d., from Mr. W. B. Campbell, of the Royal Furnishing Arcade, also from the Executors of the late Mr. Thomas Frost, a legacy of £100.

"The course of instruction in these schools embraces reading, writing, and arithmetic, together with the daily reading of the Holy Scriptures; many of the girls have also been instructed in sewing.

"The annual cost of maintaining the three schools amounts to about £700 per annum, the public may be assured that the greatest economy is used in the disbursements of the funds. St. Stephen's Presbyterian Church is the only church contributing to the support of these schools. Fresh subscriptions are absolutely required.

"The teachers in many cases visit the homes of the children. Many who have passed through these schools are in situations, and at times write to their teachers, and when in town call often at the schools to see them, thus manifesting their attachment and gratitude.

"The number of day scholars on the roll at the close of the society's year was 824, and the average attendance at the day, 192; evening, 38; and Sunday-schools, 245. Total, 475.

"The Kent-street, Harrington-street, and Glebe Sunday evening schools are largely attended, and conducted entirely by ladies and gentlemen—voluntary teachers, who show their interest in the work by their punctual and regular attendance. Some of these teachers have attended for many years, and the committee feel under great obligations to them for their valuable co-operation.

"Special thanks are due to the city missionaries for their co-operation, also to Messrs. Farmer and Co., Messrs. Thompson and Giles, Mr. and Mrs. Jooks, Mrs. Johnson (Double Bay), Mrs. and Miss Newton, Mrs. Connor, Mrs. Burgess, the Misses Cambridge, Miss Shaw, Miss Miller, Miss Griffiths, Miss Notting, Captain Sadleir, R.N., and Messrs. Dunshee, Marshall, Kent, M'Lean, Roberts, Bushby, Aitcheson, Cambridge, Newlands, Simpson, Page, and Marshall, and other ladies and gentlemen who attend as voluntary teachers, or for services rendered and kindnesses received.

"The cases made known to the teachers are in many instances most distressing, arising in many cases from causes over which the parents have no control, but, sad to relate, in most cases from the excessive use of strong drink.

[The report went on to give a number of extracts from the journals kept by the teachers, to show the hard life many of these poor children lead and the evil examples and temptations set before them, and the great need they stand in of kindness from their teachers and others.]

"Several boys and girls who have passed through these schools are now in the country, and occupying good positions; their names and residences could be placed in this report, but the committee, for many reasons, deem it unwise to do so.

"Many more extracts might be given, but the committee think that the foregoing are sufficient to convey to the public the difficulties with which they have to contend. As no charge is made, the parents in many cases appear indifferent whether the children go to school or play about the streets, but the committee feel assured that a real work is being done, and earnestly trust God's blessing may attend the daily reading of His Holy Word in these schools, and also the labours and efforts of those who are striving to make these children respectable and useful members of society, and qualified to fill those occupations in which they are likely to be engaged.

"Since closing the foregoing we have to report the death of the Honorable John Fairfax, who for many years acted as treasurer to this Institution, and liberally supported these schools, not only with his purse, but also his powerful advocacy was used in their advancement.

"Mr. James R. Fairfax has kindly consented to accept the office of treasurer."

The Rev. R. G. Paterson said he had the honour to move,—"That the report now read be adopted, and together with the treasurer's account be printed and circulated." The remarks of the chairman had met his heartiest appreciation. The schools in his opinion were needed in Sydney as well as in other parts of the country, and he desired to bring before the audience the salient points of the report in order to fix them in their memories, and that they might be induced to continue their interest in the schools. Any one who read the report would see that the schools were needed. It was quite true that the Council of Education provided free teaching for those who could not afford to pay for it, but it made no provision for gathering children from the streets—children whose want of suitable clothing prevented them attending the State schools. In many instances the Ragged School children were sought out by the society or they would have no schooling whatever. If any were absent they were sought out by the teachers and taken to schools where the law of kindness and Christian principle prevailed. There was a number of children in the city neglected by their natural guardians, born and brought up in vice, who, if they were not looked after, would have no hallowed and exalted example set before them. Hence the need of the schools. They did a most important work, for it would be seen by the report that 330 young people were on their rolls, and under their influence. These were taught to read, to write, and to do sums, and were instructed also in God's Holy Word; thus they were prepared to become useful members of society. The girls were taught to sew in a kind manner, and perhaps redeemed from criminality. The results were most encouraging, and they found on their seventeenth anniversary many children who had passed under their direction had turned out well in situations they had taken in the city and in the country. Several occupied respectable spheres in society, and he could relate an instance where one of the girls remained in a situation for twelve years and left it only to get married to a very respectable young tradesman. But for the schools what might have been the fate of that young woman, possibly she might have grown up in vice and squalor. Was not her case and that of many others they knew of a sufficient plea for them to support the schools? If they were able to lift one child from the gutter and deliver that one from a life of crime, surely one good deed was done. From his experience of the children he was glad to testify to their appearing to feel they were not neglected by society, if they were by their parents, and also to their desire after they left the schools to assist them by subscriptions. He was glad to hear the chairman give prominence to the teaching of the Word of God in the schools. By it the children were taught to know there was a God and a Saviour, and thus taught also to love each other as the Saviour loved them and all men. Another thing that pleased him in the report was that the work was carried on by Christian teachers, most of whom were ladies. Many of these gave their services voluntarily, apart from the services of a paid staff, and were very regular in their attendance. The work of the schools, he was glad to say, was carried on in a most economical manner, thanks to the committee, and the secretary—(hear, hear)—and the subscribers and the public might feel assured that the money they gave the institution would be well spent. He wished, in conclusion, to point out that each child only cost the institution £2 4s. a year which was a very sufficient reason why nearly any person should pay for the care of one of them, and he trusted that the funds would during the ensuing year be so augmented that they would have no reason to complain of their expenditure having exceeded their ordinary income. (Applause.)

The Rev. J. Barnier seconded the resolution. He agreed with the previous speaker that it was an honour to move a resolution like that, and it was an honour for any one to take part, however humbly, in doing the work of our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. They were engaged in a great and glorious work, and one that was essentially the work of Christ; and he was only sorry that they had not got more helpers in the work, and more funds to work with. He found by the report that the cost of educating each child for a year was a little more than £2, and he thereupon made up his mind to double his subscription, and endeavour to educate one child. The management of that institution was economical, as they had heard, and in one respect, to his mind, their economy was painful—he referred to the salaries of the teachers, to whom he gave all honour for the manner in which they carried out their Christian work. They ought all to do all they could to support these schools, especially as it would be long before children of this kind could possibly be reached by the Legislature, if ever that were accomplished. Since, then, they had this work to do, let them do it with all their heart. They were saving the waste material of society, and rescuing these poor unhappy children from crime, misery, and degradation. The work they did gave them a claim upon society, and should entitle them to support. The teachers could not get through their work without the Word of God: it was the help that came from the Lord which alone strengthened them for their task. He had witnessed the results of these schools in the happy homes of those who had been rescued and brought up by the Ragged schools. There was one thing in the report that he had to refer to, the evils of drink. When would the Legislature take steps to put down the gigantic evils resulting from this source? In the meanwhile it was their duty to do all they could to combat the evil by supporting such institutions as the Ragged schools.

The resolution was carried unanimously. Before it was put to the meeting the Chairman said he would follow the example of Mr. Barnier, and double his subscription.

The children attending the schools, of whom there were a good many present, were then put through a very satisfactory examination on Scripture subjects by the Rev. J. Barnier. Their answers evinced considerable intelligence, and a creditable acquaintance with Biblical facts. They also sang a hymn very nicely.

Mr. R. G. Reading then moved—"That the success vouchsafed to the Ragged schools calls for grateful acknowledgment to Almighty God, and should stimulate to increased exertion: and that the following gentlemen be the officers and committee for the ensuing year:—Patron, his Excellency Sir Hercules Robinson; treasurer, Mr. James R. Fairfax; secretary, Mr. J. S. Harrison; committee—The Lord Bishop of Sydney, the Rev. the Dean of Sydney, Rev. R. S. Paterson, the Hon. George Allen, M.L.C., Messrs. G. W. Barker, N. J. Crocker, M. Charlton, J. H. Goodlet, Joseph Paxton, R. G. Reading, J. Grafton Ross." He said he would not detain the meeting after the admirable speeches they had just heard. He must, however, state that beyond doubt the motive principle in conducting the Ragged schools was that enunciated by the Lord Jesus Christ in the Gospel that had been such a blessing to mankind, and would still be a greater blessing as time went on. The work was one in which the disciples would have engaged in without hesitation, and one supplying the place of parents to those who were shamefully neglected by their parents. He was struck at the orderly character of the children present, and at their good conduct which had evidently descended to them from the teachers, and he believed both would have a good influence on the parents who had neglected them. He was much pleased at a clipping from a local paper that showed him that one of the Ragged school boys presided with great propriety at a temperance meeting with whom the school at one time had a great deal of trouble. It often happened that those most difficult of control at first turned out well eventually. The Rev. Mr. Barnier had referred to the value of the material in the boys and girls, and he would place before the meeting the fact that Dr. Farr, an eminent English statistician, had proved that a Norfolk agricultural labourer progressed in value from £5 at his birth to £246 at the age of 25 years. They would therefore see that the children they were educating had a commercial value worth protecting in a colony where it was desirable to increase the population.

Mr. J. Kent seconded the resolution. The work of those schools had long been dear to his heart, and he had been for several years connected with them. The resolution spoke of success, and it was well for them to consider what their success was, and what results they had arrived at. He could give them instances of success that were most encouraging—instances of young men who were now filling respectable situations, who had received no other training than the Christian education of the Ragged schools. He wished the secularists and educational theorists would come and see the work that was done in these schools. With reference to the Sunday evening work, with which he was more particularly connected, he wished it to be known that they badly wanted teachers—earnest teachers who had some knowledge of teaching, and who would kindly devote their services to the work. There was one matter not mentioned in the report. At the Kent-street Sunday school they had a library, which had done great good among the children, and he wished to take that opportunity to thank those kind friends who had contributed books.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

The benediction was then pronounced, and the meeting terminated.

AMERICAN V. AUSTRALIAN DREDGES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In December last, the subject of the relative efficiency of the best types of American and Australian dredges was, I thought, set at rest when it was shown in your columns that dredging was being performed in Newcastle much more expeditiously, and at less than half the cost quoted by your Centennial Exhibition reporter, as the contract rate for easier work then going on in the harbour of New York; but I observe in the Herald of Saturday that the question has been again revived by Mr. Augustus Morris, who furnishes a letter from a gentleman in the employ of the American Dredging Company, comparing some days' work in the United States with the returns of British and Continental machines.

These special performances during brief periods with "good lifting material" (mud) have but little value when they are given with the view of comparing the merits of dredges with others working under altogether different conditions—hard sand having to be lifted here; a material, which, even according to Mr. Rendle, can only be dredged at half the speed at which mud is brought up. The actual cost per ton is what we have to look to and some light is thrown upon this by your reporter, who has told us that "the rate of dredging (mud) in New York harbour to a depth of 25 feet, and removing the silt, is 10d. per yard, and that the company have taken a contract to dredge out 500,000 tons at Baltimore, so as to give a depth of 20 feet, at 5½d. per yard, this price including the removing of the mud three miles away."

In a previous letter, I stated that the dredge I have charge of (designed by the Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers, and built in Sydney) had lifted 92,215 tons of hard sand in a month, at a total cost of (including coal, stores, wages, repairs, and interest on the value of the plant) of 3d. per ton, or 4d. per cubic yard—this rate covering the expense of towing the barges to sea. During the month just passed (August), a still larger quantity has been dredged at a cost even less than the rate stated above, while, notwithstanding all the delays incidental to stormy weather, no less than one million and a half tons have been lifted by this one machine since it started dredging, about two years ago—an amount of work, I venture to assert, equal to the performance during the same period of the whole fleet (fourteen) of American clam shell dredges put together. No extensive plant of "fifty mechanics and labourers, and a steam hammer," such as the American Dredging Company have to employ, has been found necessary to uphold the machinery employed in effecting these results, the repairs, with trifling exceptions, having been performed by the dredge's crew.

Into the question of first cost I will be quite prepared to enter when Mr. Morris is in a position to let us know how many of the primitive-built and short-lived machines of his friends over the water it has taken to dredge 1,500,000 tons of sand in two years?

That the clamshell dredge may be a convenient machine for removing mud and sewage from alongside jetties I am willing to concede; but I think the day is far distant when, for general purposes, it is likely to supersede the continuous discharging elevator dredge, which has proved so successful on the Clyde, the St. Lawrence, the Suez Canal, and in New South Wales.

A. B. PORTUS.

Newcastle.

OUR BRISBANE LETTER.

September 1.

It was the intention of the Government to make Monday and Friday of this week working days in the Legislative Assembly, but that intention has been more honoured in the breach than the observance. A House was made on Monday it is true, but the Premier at once moved the adjournment as a mark of respect to the Hon. T. B. Stephens, who had died on the previous day, and whose burial was to take place that afternoon. The leader of the Opposition spoke a few manly words of sympathy, remarking that though he had never agreed with Mr. Stephens in politics, he had a high appreciation of the excellence of his private character. For the last two years, weakened by disease, Mr. Stephens was practically out of public life. Within the past year he was nominated a member of the Upper House, and actually attended the last sitting previous to the adjournment for the Exhibition holidays; but he was unable to throw himself into business either public or private as he did when his was a prominent name in all concerns connected with the legislation of the colony. Mr. Stephens was the son of a Baptist minister in Rochdale, and in his younger days imbibed a taste for politics in that memorable Anti-Corn-Law agitation, whose moving spirits were Bright and Cobden. Mr. Stephens used to recall with pride, and in the homely Lancashire dialect which clung to him to the last, his personal reminiscences of those great men, one of whom lies in the pretty little Sussex churchyard of West Lavington, while the other, who, by the latest news from home, was about to unveil a Cobden statue in one of the northern towns of England, has become whitehaired and enfeebled. Mr. Stephens came to the colonies in 1849, began his career in Sydney as a wool-buyer on the Darling Downs, and became a resident of Brisbane as far back as 1855. He was, therefore, connected with the early political history of the colony. Always a stanch supporter of what is called the Liberal party, he became in time Colonial Treasurer, Postmaster-General, and Minister for Lands. The first two offices he filled with credit and ability, but it was into the administration of the public lands that he threw his greatest vigour. Upon this question he had theories of his own, and in promoting them he naturally made many political enemies. His health broke down under his over-work in this department, and he then laid the seeds of the disease which terminated his career last Sunday. I have said that he made many political enemies, for there was a good deal of warm fighting in Parliament over his department and bitter feelings arose. But on Monday afternoon there was such a funeral as we have seldom seen in Brisbane. The old political enemies mingled with his friends around his grave, and a vast number of citizens of all creeds and classes, swelled the crowd that by its presence testified to the estimation in which a man of blameless life is held. Without being ostentatious, Mr. Stephens was, from youth upwards, a sincerely religious man, and a leading member of his denomination. For fourteen years he was one of the proprietors, and a very moving spirit of the Courier, the present high tone of which may be traced in no slight degree to his influence. Mr. Stephens was 58 years of age.

The Exhibition has now become a thing of the past, and already discussions have taken place as to what is to be done next year. I have a suspicion that we shall see no exhibition, beyond a small local affair, in 1878. The current at this moment certainly sets in that direction. Few persons outside are aware of the enormous trouble that has been experienced in collecting subscriptions from the Brisbane people. It is almost invidious to single out one gentleman more than another in dealing with this question, but it is well known that Mr. Palmer undertook a house to house visitation; and that but for his bulldog pertinacity there would have been no exhibition. He got the money somehow, but the process was like dragging rusty nails out of an old plank. The members of the Council felt that although difficulties like these might be trampled down, for a couple of years, it behoved them as men of forethought to remember the old superstition—"Beware of the third." They have, therefore, remembered it to some purpose. A meeting of the Council was called on Thursday—called irregularly, as the chairman took care before any business was done to point out, but well attended and representative. It was stated by Mr. Gordon that he had had something to do with calling the meeting, because there was a pretty general feeling amongst members of the Council that an annual exhibition was too much to attempt. Mr. Bernays, who appeared not to have been aware of the object of the meeting, had come prepared with a proposition of an entirely contrary sense. His proposal was that steps should be at once taken to arrange the Exhibition of 1873, by dispatching circular letters to all the British colonies, even the West Indies and West African settlements, inviting their co-operation. Upon this Mr. Gresley Lukin, admitting the value of the proposition, said there was not only amongst members of the Council and association, but amongst the public, a considerable difference of opinion as to whether there should be an exhibition at all next year. Mr. Lukin put his opinions into a couple of resolutions, the gist of them being, that it is advisable to consider whether the better plan will not be to communicate with kindred societies in the other colonies, with the view of forming an Intercolonial Association, and holding Intercolonial Exhibitions alternately in the various capitals. I believe this is an echo of the public mind, but it must once more be repeated, that the public here cannot be congratulated upon any support they have given. We have had two highly successful Exhibitions, but they are due to the untiring energy of the Council, the chief labours of which has been galvanizing into sympathy an apathetic public. But our leading organ of public opinion I notice this morning is committed (as we might expect) to the Intercolonial Association theory, namely, a big exhibition alternately in Victoria (where an Exhibition has been fixed upon for 1879), South Australia, New South Wales, and Queensland, with a local Exhibition in Brisbane yearly. Mr. Joubert, I should mention, was specially invited to the meeting on Thursday. Of course, he is too wary a bird to be easily caught by hastily pronouncing a decided opinian; therefore, he held Mr. Bernays in one hand and Mr. Lukn in the other, balanced them gracefully, the one against the other for a while, and finally, with a fine outburst of frankness, said he had divided affections in the matter, and should like to see the propositions of both gentlemen judiciously blended. He said that if the whole of the colonies combined in such a scheme as Mr. Lukin had proposed the whole of the colonies would be benefited. Just so. That is the point. Will the whole of the Australian colonies combine? This is the question which remains to be answered. Meanwhile the meeting, having been warned by the chairman that no decision it might come to would be binding, separated without passing any resolution. It accomplished one thing, however, it struck a key-note of no uncertain sound.

After the dust and turmoil of conflict comes the triumph of victory. "Sound the trumpets, beat the drums." In other words the Corporation of Brisbane yesterday gave what I presume may be temed an Exhibition picnic, since funds were voted to celebrate the success of last week, and all the exhibitors within reach were invited. It was not unsuccessful though the guests numbered only 120, the greater portion being Brisbane ladies. The National Association, the Ministry, both Houses of Parliament, and the other colonies were well represented. The affair would have been more successful perhaps, if a different programme had been arranged. In the uncertain weather, and with rumours prevailing that a trip to Moreton Bay was on the cards, large numbers of invited persons held back. The weather, however, turned out fine, and there was no trip to the bay; the absentees were therefore losers. The picnic took the form of a sail to Lytton in the steamer Kate, luncheon in a marquee there, and a sail home again in the evening. It would have been better to have had an entertainment close to Brisbane—even if no better place could have been found than Bowen Park itself. There is nothing whatever worth seeing at Lytton, beyond a seaward view from the high ground upon which the telegraph station stands. There was a portentous toast list to be got through, so that what was wanting in the ordinary enjoyments of picnicing was made up in speechifying. The Ministry were toasted, and the Premier humourously responded. Then came "The Parliament," with the Hon. T. L. Murray-Prior, as spokesman for the Upper House, and Mr. Groom, father of the Legislative Assembly, respondent for the lower. The toast of the day was naturally "Success to the National, Agricultural, and Industrial Association of Queensland," with special thanks from the citizens to Mr. Palmer and his colleagues on the Council for their efforts. To this toast Mr. Palmer returned thanks. In due course came "The Commissioners and visitors from the other colonies," with Mr. Joubert to acknowledge on behalf of the New South Wales exhibitors the pleasure they had experienced during their stay in Brisbane. He tickled his audience not a little by informing them that when he comes back he means to warn the people of New South Wales that they will have to look to their laurels. The Canadian Commissioner (Mr. Hemming) and the Victorian Commissioner (Mr. Buncle) also offered a few remarks. The speeches were all very nice even down to the gallant Joubert proposing "The ladies;" but seventeen of them at a picnic were, you must admit, a few too much. On the previous evening in the Legislative Assembly, a vote of £1000 was granted to the Association, not £1500 as the proposer of the vote wished.

At the present moment the rain seems to have disappeared again. I gather from the telegrams from Sydney, and the northern stations of Queensland, that in the matter of rain during the past week our experience has been on the whole the same. We have had showers, but not the grateful downpour that, to so many, would make all the difference between independence and embarrassment. In Brisbane, no doubt, trade was begining to be pinched, and apprehensions were growing every day. The little rain which fell on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, if it did nothing else, inspired hope, and the weatherwise still cheer the anxious by prophesying that the rain hovers about. Naturally sufferers are sometimes anxious not to publish their losses to the world, but it is with us as with you—sheep have died by tens of thousands, and there have been heavy losses in cattle.

Parliament has got through some work this week. On Tuesday the Speaker reported that the Royal assent had been given to the Chinese Immigrants Bill. Spite then of all discussion this measure is now a fait accompli. The Government railways have, to the surprise of many, passed safely through the Upper House, and considerable progress has been made with the Estimates. The Colonial Secretary had previously passed his share, and this week has seen the Attorney-General clear of the breakers. He had, in the double capacity of Attorney-General and Secretary for Public Instruction, to "shepherd" two batches. He made the gratifying announcement during a discussion on the Education votes, that the desire for education in Queensland is marvellous, scarcely a week passing without its application for new schools. One evening was occupied in debating whether District Judges should not be compelled to live in their own districts, and whether they had any right to travelling expenses if they did not. For the future their Honors, if they choose to live out of their districts, will travel to and fro at their own costs. Some unpleasant things were said about one of the District Judges, against whom it was insinuated there were executions out, and who had not paid his landlady—a poor widow—for board and lodging. Some members of the Opposition very properly wished the accusers to name their man, but this was not done, and the public are consequently left to attach stigma to the whole of the District Judges, or to either, according to fancy. On Thursday night, a bill to amend the law respecting cruelty to animals was, to all intents and purposes, laughed out of the Legislative Assembly, albeit it was a facsimile—so they said—of an amended New South Wales Statute. There was no necessity to ring the bell for a division. The "noes" had it in the most unmistakable manner. The leader of the Opposition ridiculed it magnificently, describing it as a bill to prevent children driving goats. The hon. member drew quite a portrait of little urchins who earned a few sixpences by carting in wood by means of goats. To make this bill turn upon the goat was the surest way of repressing it. Governor Cairns in one of his speeches described two evils from which this community suffers when he spoke of "goats, larrikins, and other noxious animals." The goats are an unmitigated nuisance in Brisbane. But that we are forbidden to fire off a gun, I myself should have employed a No. 1 cartridge upon three or four animals during the present week. That is a general experience moreover. The goat consequently found no friends in Parliament; there were some who recommended that he should be put into harness systematically, and converted as an institution into a beast of burden. One member (Mr. M'Lean) narrated how, in the early days of Victorian goldmining, goats—horseflesh being scarce—were used in working puddling machines. Another gentleman drew a vivid picture of a team of six goats, beautifully harnessed, and taking the road with eminent success. It was a singular coincidence, but while this debate was proceeding, half a dozen lads were emulating the Roman charioteers, by running races in front of Parliamentary buildings, the steeds being lively young goats, the chariots gin cases rudely mounted upon home-made wheels. When an hon. member solemnly stated that the only practical use to which a goat had ever been applied was the lading of him with "a packsaddle full of sins, by the Israelites, who forthwith sent him adrift in the wilderness," it was seen that the fate of the bill was sealed. There followed a little further debate as to how far a man became a criminal by carrying a fowl by its legs, and then the business was promptly settled by the happy dispatch process.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

REUTER'S TELEGRAM TO AUSTRALIAN ASSOCIATED PRESS.

THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR.

London, September 1.

The report of Mehemet Ali's victory over the Russians, near the River Lom, has been fully confirmed.

A despatch from Isman Pacha states that on the 31st August he made a reconnaissance of the Russian position east of Plevna, and afterwards attacked and routed the enemy, who were 30,000 strong. After severe fighting, he carried three redoubts by assault.

OFFICIAL TELEGRAM.

We are indebted to the Hon. Sir John Robertson, K.C.M.G., Colonial Secretary, for the following copy of a telegram received this day from Adelaide:—

"London, August 31, 6.40.

"After furious fighting at Schipka Pass and immense losses on both sides, the Russians still retain possession.

"Suleiman Pasha is trying to surround the Russians, to destroy the line of communication and prevent their retreat to Gabrova.

"Large reinforcements are coming forward on both sides, and Servia is expected to take part in the war. Greece is holding back.

"Germany, supported by other Powers, has complained to Turkey of her treatment of war prisoners.

"Bank rate raised to 3 per cent.

AUSTRALIAN ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAMS.

BATHURST.

Monday.

A fire occurred last night on the premises of Alderman Hulks, in Piper-street. The stable was discovered to be in flames at 9.30, and was completely burnt. Two horses were in the stable at the time; one was burnt, the other, a valuable trotting mare, was horribly scorched, and was killed afterwards to end its suffering. A buggy and other property were destroyed. The estimated loss is £100. The wind was blowing strongly, and it was only by great exertion that the adjoining premises were saved from destruction. The origin of the fire is not positively known.

PARKES.

Monday.

The District Court opened this morning, before Mr. District Court Judge Wilkinson, and will occupy a couple of days.

A house in Market-square, occupied by Mr. Hugh Corrigan, narrowly escaped being burnt down this morning. A considerable portion of the shingled roof was on fire, but plenty of water being handy, the fire was extinguished. It is supposed that sparks falling on the shingles caused the fire.

A lad named Henry Milthorpe, aged 15, an apprentice in the ship City of Agra, fell down the hold of that vessel this morning, sustaining a comminuted fracture of the left leg and arm. He is now in the hospital.

SEAL ROCKS.

Monday.

The schooner Vine, bound from Sydney to the Macleay River, foundered and sunk off the Seal Rocks at 5 a.m. this morning. All hands saved. The crew are now at the Seal Rocks Lighthouse.

GRAFTON.

Monday.

At 7 o'clock this evening a destructive fire broke out at M'Garrigle's Beehive store, formerly occupied by John James, now of Sydney. Mr. M'Garrigle was closing and putting out a kerosene lamp, and whilst standing on the footsteps they broke the lamp and ignited the drapery goods. The fire rapidly spread, and in a few minutes the whole shop was ablaze. Inside the destruction was complete: scarcely any of the household furniture or stock was saved. The stock is valued at £5000. It was insured for £2500. The house, a large two-storied building, belongs to the representative of Captain Wiseman; it is insured, but for what amount is not yet known. The fire was confined to the building. Nothing but three walls are now left standing. There was an immense crowd of people at the fire.

A deputation from consumers and others waited on Mr. Berry to-day, and asked for the abolition of the duty on maize. They pointed out that the tax was a class one, and would press very heavily on the owners of horses. Mr. Berry promised consideration of the matter, and said if he could see his way to comply with the request of the deputation he would do so.

THE LEGISLATIVE DEAD-LOCK IN SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

(From the S. A. Register, August 28.)

The proceedings of the Legislative Council this week will be watched with exceptional interest. The whole of the business so long left undisposed of has been restored to the Paper, and the question now is what will they do with it? In commenting upon this subject last week we pointed out that the Council, having assumed the stand they have, might fairly wait to see whether any action would be taken in the Assembly in the direction of removing the deadlock which is fast becoming a source of inconvenience and danger. At the last meeting of the Council one or two of the members saw fit to ridicule the idea, and maintained that it was beneath the dignity of the Chamber to recognise in any way the Assembly's right of interference in the matter. We ventured to dispute that view as being ill-timed and not in accordance with sound policy; and that we were justified in so doing is conclusively demonstrated by Imperial precedent. The House of Commons, although clinging tenaciously to its undoubted prerogative of being the only House in which Ministries are to be made and unmade, does not treat with unconcern the deliberate votes of the House of Lords upon questions of no confidence in the Government. A striking illustration of this is to be found in the proceedings of Parliament no further back than 1850. On the 17th June of that year Lord Stanley, afterwards Earl Derby, leader of the Tory party in the Lords, prompted by the fact that the Government of the day—that of Lord John Russell—had become involved in disputes with Greece which had led to much irritation and distrust in France and Russia, moved a motion condemning the conduct of the Ministry as "calculated to endanger the continuance of our friendly relations with other Powers." After a debate lasting over two nights, this was carried by a majority of 37 in a House of 301 Peers. Theodore Martin, the biographer of the Prince Consort, writing with the sanction of the Queen and with the Prince's own records of the time before him, expresses the conclusion arrived at by the Government that, as in the discussions in the Lords the general foreign policy of the Government had been impugned, "it was impossible to avoid taking a decision of the House of Commons upon the subject." Again, he says in reference to the same vote:—"No one could have regretted more than the Queen and the Prince the embarrassing position in which the Government were placed by it, and the necessity to which it led, for the agitation of the whole subject of our foreign policy in the Commons."

This, it will be seen, not only confirms the view we have urged, but it carries the matter a step further. So far from there being a recognition of the principle unconditionally contended for here that the Government should pay no heed to a vote of the Upper House affecting their position, they felt constitutionally bound to take notice of it—not in the way of yielding their positions in consequence of the adverse decision of the Lords, but in the way of directly appealing from that decision to the judgment of the Commons. This appeal was forthwith entered upon. Two days after the vote a statement was made in the Commons by Lord John Russell, and Mr. Roebuck, one of the foremost members supporting the Government, was put forward to propose a motion approving of their foreign policy. The debate was one of the most brilliant upon record. Lord Palmerston's defence of his policy lasted five hours, and was a masterpiece of argument and eloquence, and it was not until the fourth night that a vote was arrived at, the result being the adoption of the motion by a majority of 46 in a House of 574 members. Throughout it was recognised that the fate of the Ministry depended upon the issue, and this remained uncertain to the last. Among those who declared against the Government were Sir Robert Peel, Sir James Graham, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Disraeli (of course following the lead of Lord Stanley), Mr. Cobden, and Sir W. Molesworth. Not once, so far as time records enable us to judge, was the idea raised that to debate the subject at all upon the initiative of the Peers or to support Lord Stanley's view would be giving unconstitutional weight to the proceedings of the House of Lords. The speech of Sir Robert Peel, one of the most powerful contributions to the discussion, was the last delivered by him in the House, the fatal fall from his horse occurring the day after the vote. The right honourable gentleman had long held aloof from party politics, giving to the nation the full benefit of his ripest experience and wisest counsel. There was nothing to bind him to the Tories, who had driven him from office in revenge for the repeal of the Corn Laws; but in temperate and statesmanlike language he justified the vote against the Government which upon the merits of the question he felt compelled to give.

This case, which in all essential respects is parallel to that which has caused so much perplexity here, has been described by us thus lengthily with the idea that even yet it may be valuable in guiding Parliament through the difficulty that so seriously obstructs the course of legislation. Not only does it give warrant for the interposition of the Assembly, but it shows that it is for the Government rather than for the Opposition to take action, and it proves further that no more dread of strengthening the Upper House should in cases such as that which has arisen deter independent members from passing an honest and unbiassed judgment upon the question at issue. This constitutional mode of settling the dispute between the Council and the Government is still open, and can yet be resorted to. At the same time it is not desirable that the prosecution of the public business in the Legislative Council should be made contingent upon its adoption. In the earliest stages of the controversy—as long ago in fact as July 11, a few days after the passing of Mr. Hay's motion condemning as unconstitutional the Ministerial action in the matter of the Parliament buildings—we expressed ourselves thus decisively upon the duty of the Council. "It would," we urged, "be utterly mischievous and dangerous to allow that the Upper House is warranted in taking the stand that it will not proceed with the public business. The provocation it has received is great, and Sir Henry Ayers has no reason to complain of its bitterly resenting his action; but there is a point beyond which it is not expedient or desirable for it to go in maintaining its dignity or even its rights. It would constitute a most awkward precedent were it to persevere in the extreme course which it now seems inclined to take—a precedent which might one day lead to very disastrous consequences. If the relation of the present members of that Chamber to the country is taken into account, this will be yet more evident. Nearly four years must elapse before any of its members can be called to account by their constituents, and in the face of this it is unreasonable to suppose that there can be any justification for bringing the business of the country to a deadlock. Under the particular circumstances no great harm resulted from delaying the Supply Bill for four or five days, but beyond this a refusal to proceed with the work of the session is unfair to the public, and may even be regarded as unconstitutional."

Events have made great progress since these words were written. Affront after affront has been offered to the Council by the Chief Secretary—no doubt acting in conjunction with his colleagues—and the Council have retaliated both by speech and by motion with a severity unexampled in the Parliamentary records of this province. Had Sir Henry Ayers not been callous to censure and impervious to rebuke he would, in the total absence of sympathetic action on the part of the Assembly, have long ere this adopted the perfectly legitimate and constitutional course of resigning a position which he can manifestly no longer fill with advantage to the cause of legislation. He has not seen fit to do this, and we maintain that it is now incumbent upon the Council to carry on the necessary work of the session in the way which seems to them most consistent with the best interests of the public and with their own proper self-respect.

The Stock and Share market had no transactions in Bank stock to-day, though there were sellers at late rates. Commercial offered at 95; City, at 9¼; Joint Stock, at 13⅝; Mercantile, at 7; and New South Wales, at 52. Insurance shares in moderate demand, 6s. 6d. paid for Mutual, and 33s. for New South Wales. Buyers of Pacific, at 25s. 6d; and of United, at 21s. 6d. Gaslight, fully paid, changed hands at 15⅝. Steam shares, steady; 18¼ realised for Australasian; 6½ declined for Hunter River, 7 asked. Shale and Oil had a further decline, sales at 17s., 16s. 10½d., 16s. 9d., and offered at the latter. Wallsend Coal showed an improvement, sales at 17¼ to 17⅜. No transactions in gold shares. The only change in debentures was that New South Wales long-dated fives were offered at 110.

Trade matters presented no new features, as the Import markets opened about as dull to-day as they closed at the end of last week. News of a fall of rain in the Western districts is very satisfactory, coming, as it has, when it was greatly needed to secure the safety of the wheat crop. From South Australia also we hear that the late rain has ensured a good yield in that colony. The market here is very dull at from £18 to £19 for flour. 8s. is nominal value for wheat, but less would be taken to quit a parcel. A small iron vessel has been chartered to load for London with the bulk of the New Zealand wheat remaining in this market. Low prices are still ruling for candles a shade below, 10d. accepted for a leading brand. Chicory is getting scarce, nearly all the stock being held by two firms. Salt is difficult to quit at a reduced value. Sugars have a steady inquiry, the trade not being burdened with stocks of any description.

Quotations for local produce have an upward tendency, especially what is required for feeding purposes. Maize is firm at 3s., and oaten hay ranges as high as £5 10s.; lucerne at £3 10s. to £4 10s., Cheese, 8d. to 9d.; bacon, 7d. to 9d. Ballarat potatoes, £3 5s. to £3 10s.; Circular Head, £4 5s. to £4 10s.

The Melbourne Argus of Saturday reports :—

In the import market business continues very quiet, and with little of interest or importance to refer to. Breadstuffs show no animation whatever, and neither in flour, nor yet in wheat, has anything in the way of speculative sales been allowed to transpire. Flour is quoted at £15 to £15 2s 6d, but only trade sales are making even at the reduced rates. Wheat likewise shows no sign of animation, but there is not much offering; we quote from 7s 2d to 7s 3d. Several lots of inferior have been disposed of at a proportionate reduction. Feeding grains have only a moderate inquiry. Good to stout feeding qualities of oats have been disposed of at 4s to 4s 2d. Maize is selling at 3s 11d to 4s, the latter being required for really good samples. Sugars have been in fair request. For the yellows, rations, and browns which comprise a great portion of the Elizabeth's cargo, offers have been made at improved rates without leading to business, importers preferring to go to auction. A parcel of fine white counters have been disposed of at £36 5s. Messrs. Kitchen report having reduced this month the price of their plain household soap £2 per ton. The timber sales have not been of much account. The cargo of Norwegian T. and G. flooring, lining, and weatherboards, per Ole Smith Plong, comprising 1,200,000 feet was cleared out at 12s 6d to 7s. A shipment of red T. and G. flooring and lining, ex Macduff, was also disposed of at 8s to 12s 6d. In liquids we note the quittance of a parcel of Prunier's brandy in bulk at 5s 9d. This is an improvement on late sales, as the brand is now beginning to meet with considerable favour. Sales of Renault's are mentioned. We learn that the agents of this brand have resolved to stand out for a good advance on the late quotation of 7s. An auction sale of wines and spirits was held this forenoon, but not very much was done.

MINING REPORT.

GREAT Cobar Copper Co.—The mining captain reports on August 23 as follows :—"Becker's shaft is down 7 fathoms (below 26-fathom level); the lode appears to be making richer every foot we sink; the ore is beautiful grey and red oxide and virgin copper. The lode in both Barton's and Hardie's shafts is improving as we sink, though not so much as Becker's, and are hard for working. At the 26-fathom level driving south from Becker's shaft, and also driving north from Barton's shaft there are good lodes of ore, which will give us fine stopes. The stopes are, as usual, looking well. The new furnace stack is built, and I intend commencing the second new furnace this next week."

[J. C. WALKER AND CO.]

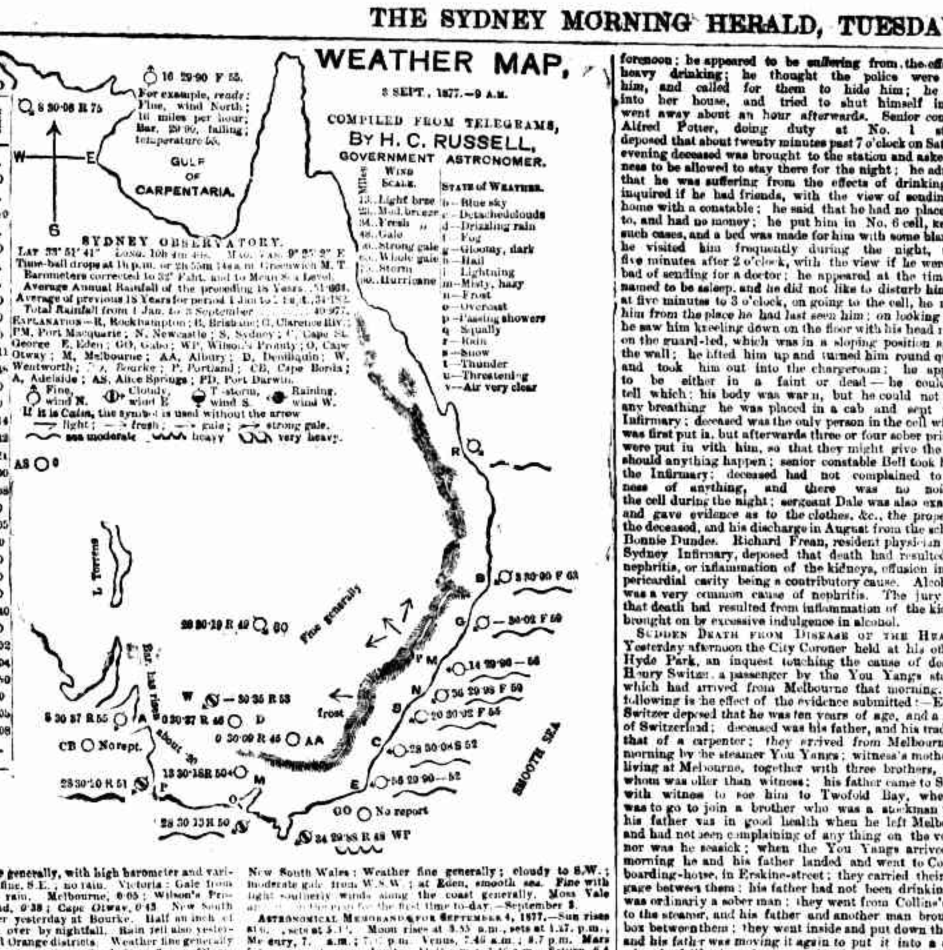

Fat Cattle.—924 fat cattle yarded, and sold to-day, the best, as usual lately, being from the westward and Gippsland. There was not a large attendance of country buyers. Town purchasers, however, bid with spirit; and there was, therefore, but a slight reduction from the satisfactory prices of last Wednesday. Quotations — Prime bullocks, £15 to £17 5s; extra prime and heavy weights to £22; good, £11 to £13 10s; medium, £8 10s to £9; best cows, £12 to £14; others, £7 10s to £10 10s. CORONER'S INQUESTS.

ACCIDENTALLY POISONED BY MURIATIC ACID.—Yesterday the City Coroner held at his office, in Hyde Park, an inquest touching the cause of death of a woman named Elizabeth Nicholson, wife of a labourer residing at Seale's Yard, off Goulburn-street. The husband deposed that his wife was 27 years of age, and had left no family; she was given to drink; on Thursday, the 23rd ultimo, he took exception to something in her conduct, and told her that she was not to come into his house again; she did not come in that night; next morning, about 6 o'clock, she came for her clothes, and he gave them to her; she was then intoxicated; he did not know where she passed the previous night; he next saw her about 10 o'clock in a yard common to the houses in the neighbourhood; there were two or three women about her; he thought that she was drunk; she abused him; witness called his sister's little girl and sent her to Mr. Wells's for threepennyworth of spirits of salts, an article which he used for brazing; the girl brought the salts in a 6-oz. bottle, about one-fourth full; when he got the bottle he emptied the contents of it into a cup and left it on a table, with the empty bottle with a label on it alongside; witness then went out of the house, leaving the door open; he went to Mrs. O'Brien's premises at the top of the lane to procure a little zinc to dissolve it; he got it, and returned to his house, when he found that the cup that he had left containing the spirits of salts was empty on the floor, which was smoking with it; on his return with the zinc deceased was sitting at the door; he said to her, finding the spirits upset, "Lizzie, what did you mean by upsetting that? I have got to get my living by it;" and she said she had drunk it; he said that if she had she would not live for ten minutes; she did not complain, but rolled about the yard; he sent for a constable, and in about a quarter of an hour senior constable Garland came; a cab was procured and she was taken to the Infirmary. A neighbour named Thomas Renfrey said that he saw deceased go into the house during her husband's absence; he heard her make use of the words "Here's luck," and directly after she came out and sat down on the step where she had previously been sitting. The rest of the evidence of this witness was corroborative of that of the husband. Richard Frean, resident medical officer of the Sydney Infirmary, deposed that death had resulted from muriatic acid poisoning. Senior constable Garland was also examined. The jury found that death had resulted from the effects of an overdose of muriatic acid, accidentally taken.

DEATH IN A POLICE CELL.—The City Coroner held a inquest, yesterday, at his office, touching the death of Thomas Kernish. Michael Meagher, labourer, residing at 227, Kent-street, deposed that he knew the deceased, who was a seaman who had lately left the schooner Bonnie Dundee; he was a native of the Isle of Man, and 37 years of age; he saw him on Saturday afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock, when he appeared to be suffering from the effects of excessive drinking; he took him home to Jocelyn's public-house in Sussex-street, where he left him; he again saw him about 6 o'clock, when he was in the same condition at M'Millan's corner in Sussex-street; he went into Jocelyn's. Mary Ann Misson, living in Clarence-lane with her husband, last saw deceased alive at her place on last Saturday forenoon; he appeared to be suffering from the effects of heavy drinking; he thought the police were after him, and called for them to hide him; he went into her house, and tried to shut himself in; he went away about an hour afterwards. Senior constable Alfred Potter, doing duty at No. 1 station deposed that about twenty minutes past 7 o'clock on Saturday evening deceased was brought to the station and asked witness to be allowed to stay there for the night; he admitted that he was suffering from the effects of drinking; he inquired if he had friends, with the view of sending him home with a constable; he said that he had no place to go to, and had no money; he put him in No. 6 cell, kept for such cases, and a bed was made for him with some blankets; he visited him frequently during the night, up to five minutes after 2 o'clock, with the view if he were very bad of sending for a doctor; he appeared at the time just named to be asleep, and he did not like to disturb him, and at five minutes to 3 o'clock, on going to the cell, he missed him from the place he had last seen him; on looking round he saw him kneeling down on the floor with his head resting on the guard-led, which was in a sloping position against the wall; he lifted him up and turned him round quickly and took him out into the chargeroom; he appeared to be either in a faint or dead—he could not tell which: his body was warm, but he could not detect any breathing he was placed in a cab and sent to the Infirmary; deceased was the only person in the cell when he was first put in, but afterwards three or four sober prisoners were put in with him, so that they might give the alarm should anything happen; senior constable Bell took him to the Infirmary; deceased had not complained to witness of anything, and there was no noise in the cell during the night; sergeant Dale was also examined and gave evidence as to the clothes, &c., the property of the deceased, and his discharge in August from the schooner Bonnie Dundee. Richard Frean, resident physician to the Sydney Infirmary, deposed that death had resulted from nephritis, or inflammation of the kidneys, effusion into the pericardial cavity being a contributory cause. Alcoholism was a very common cause of nephritis. The jury found that death had resulted from inflammation of the kidneys, brought on by excessive indulgence in alcohol.

SUDDEN DEATH FROM DISEASE OF THE HEART.—Yesterday afternoon the City Coroner held at his office in Hyde Park, an inquest touching the cause of death of Henry Switzer, a passenger by the You Yangs steamer, which had arrived from Melbourne that morning. The following is the effect of the evidence submitted:—Edward Switzer deposed that he was ten years of age, and a native of Switzerland; deceased was his father, and his trade was that of a carpenter; they arrived from Melbourne that morning by the steamer You Yangs; witness's mother was living at Melbourne, together with three brothers, one of whom was older than witness; his father came to Sydney with witness to see him to Twofold Bay, where he was to go to join a brother who was a stockman there; his father was in good health when he left Melbourne, and had not been complaining of any thing on the voyage, nor was he seasick; when the You Yangs arrived this morning he and his father landed and went to Collins's boarding-house, in Erskine-street; they carried their luggage between them; his father had not been drinking; he was ordinarily a sober man; they went from Collins's back to the steamer, and his father and another man brought a box between them; they went inside and put down the box, and his father was moving it again to put it into a corner when he fell backwards on to the floor; witness and the man who came with the box were present; he only gave two yawns after he fell, and never spoke; he appeared to die at once; a constable came and took his father's body to the Infirmary. Joseph Harrison, a fellow passenger of the deceased from Melbourne, gave corroborative evidence. He is the man referred to in the boy's evidence as carrying the box with his father, and as being present at his father's death. Richard Frean, resident physician at the Sydney Infirmary, deposed that death had been the result of a failure of the heart's action, arising from fatty degeneration. Deceased was a man of about forty years of age. Constable Paviour deposed to the removal of the body to the Infirmary. The jury found that death had resulted from disease of the heart.

EXTRAORDINARY CASE.

(Abridged from the Gippsland Times, August 24.)

A MAN named Peter Murray, aged 54 years, in the employ of Mr. Grant, butcher, of Newry, was admitted into the Gipps Land Hospital on the 16th August suffering from severe injuries which he on oath declared were inflicted upon him in the manner described in the subjoined depositions:—"On the 15th of the present month I was at Fraser's Hotel, Glenmaggie, and John Fraser stabbed me with a knife which he held in his right hand. We were not quarrelling. Only the two of us were there at the time. It was in the bar of the house where I was stabbed. Fraser asked me if I would go to work for him, as he was going to commence the butchering business. I refused. It must have been this made him angry. I was standing when I was stabbed. I felt something hot, but did not know what had happened till I looked at Fraser and saw the knife in his hand. The knife was a large-sized pocket knife. When I saw the knife in Fraser's hand I saw that it was bloody, and the blood was then flowing from me. I had spoken to Fraser about some selection, and I gave him no occasion of any kind to interfere with me. I got up and started away driving, and when about a mile on my road I felt faint, and I then saw a man named George Hower, who was also driving. He came towards me to stop, and asked me if I was engaged to work for Fraser. I said 'No.' He then said, 'Are you coming back with me to Fraser's?' I said, 'No.' He then said, 'Then I'll go a bit of the road with you,' and began to start his horse so as to frighten mine. He frightened my horse so that I could not hold him. We went on for about half a mile, when I fainted from loss of blood, and the cart went against a stump and I was thrown out, and then received a bruise. Hower then came to me when I was on the ground, and said, 'Hollos, who's been stabbing you?' I said, 'Fraser,' when Hower said, 'Then I must help Fraser.' He (Hower) then took his knife, and, removing the clothes which covered the wound, thrust the knife once into the exact place of the wound, removed the knife and thrust it in again crosswise to the first thrust. He did it very coolly. Hower took the knife he used from his own pocket, and opened it while I lay on the ground. You see all this was done to hunt down Donald Grant, a butcher, in whose employ I was. Where Hower met me and assaulted me, was a mile the Tinamba side of the Glenmaggie township. After he had stabbed me, he drove off home. I said, 'Good-bye' to him, and that 'I had got the worst of it, but would punish him.' He replied, 'Not so much as you think.' I thought by this that he meant the affair would be kept dark. I believe that Hower made my wound deeper than it was before. I tried to walk away but could not, and lay down beside the road. I was there, I think, about an hour and a half, when a young man, who is fencing for Stone, came up and took me away to the township. When Fraser stabbed me, it was about 3 o'clock p.m., and Hower did so within an hour after. Every word of that is as true as ever a word a man spoke. I have no more to say that would be of any use. I cannot swear exactly to the time, but all else is perfectly true."

In consequence of these statements, Mr. Foster, P.M., issued warrants for the apprehension of Fraser and Hower, and they were arrested by Sergeant Irwin on a charge of stabbing with intent to murder Peter Murray. Both denied all knowledge of the affair. On Friday morning at 8 o'clock, Mr. Foster again attended at the hospital. Fraser and Hower were placed at the foot of Murray's bed, and the depositions above given having been read and sworn to as correct by Murray, he deposed further:—"The two men now standing before me are the men who assaulted me, and both stabbed me." Fraser was called upon to question Peter Murray. In answer to a question whether Murray knew who he was, he replied, "You are John Fraser. When you and I parted on the 15th, we parted friends. We wished each other 'Good-bye.' You did stab me." To George Hower.—"I saw you on the 15th, coming towards the township. You stabbed me in the old hole where I was stabbed before. I could not struggle much, but I sang out enough. You made the hole deeper and wider. The knife was a pocketknife, with a wooden handle."

Neither of these depositions was taken as a "dying" deposition; but at 4 p.m. on Friday, when it became evident that Murray could not live, Mr. Foster prepared to take his dying declaration, but Murray said he did not feel that he was about to die, and consequently no further deposition was taken. He expired about an hour afterwards, at a quarter to 6 p.m. on Friday.

The prisoners will be charged on remand with stabbing Peter Murray with intent, at the Sale Police Court, on Friday next. They are at present in custody, bail having been refused.
